

NAVAL CUT OF HOOVER IS OPPOSED

Approval of $750,000,000 Program to Be Sought in Congress

LEGION WISH HEADED

Naval General Board to Have Final Word

Washington, Oct. 2.—(AP)—An authorization by congress of a $750-000,000 Naval construction program is to be sought in December by the Republican chairman of the last Senate and House Naval committees.

This disclosure came today on the heels of Senator Borah's approval of President Hoover's move to reduce federal expenditures by slashing six destroyers off a replacement program of eleven.

The plans were discussed between Senator Hale of Maine and Representative Britten of Illinois, at a closed conference yesterday in the Senate Naval committee rooms.

It was decided that since Congress is charged by the constitution with providing adequate national defense, the high naval authorities should be summoned for questioning as to the needs of the navy, particularly with reference to building up to the London treaty limits.

Despite the action of the President in seeking to keep down construction expenditures, the chairman of the two naval committees agreed to support the resolution of the American Legion favoring construction under the treaty, which expires in 1936. In the verbal agreement, it was planned that the construction program should terminate at the expiration of the treaty.

One stipulation was, however, that the naval general board and the ranking admirals in the Navy department must approve the program before any definite drive would be made to secure passage of the measures at the coming session.

A tentative outline of the proposed legislation calls for the construction under the treaty of the remaining tonnage in aircraft car-

TAXPAYERS' EMPLOYE ATTACKED BY CLERK

ACCOUNTANT SAYS HE WAS STRUCK DURING ROW OVER
MARION-CO. BOOKS

Marion, O., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Clarence Bushong, Prospect, accountant for the Marion County Taxpayers' Association and allied groups working for a reduction of county expenditures, today filed a charge of assault and battery against T. A. O'Leary, clerk of the county commissioners.

Bushong claimed O'Leary struck him in the face after an argument over the refusal of the county official to permit the accountant to inquire into the county records.

The county commissioners recently rejected the request of the tax organization and associated groups for a cut in the salaries of county employees and the institution of a general economy program in county government.

Bushong formerly was a state examiner at Columbus.

CHARGE PARRIED BY PROSECUTOR

Urbana, O., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Edward F. Guillaune, Champaign county secret service officer, told Common Pleas Judge Frank M.
Clevenger of Wilmington, today, that he received the money withdrawn by Prosecutor William M.
Vance from the county treasury, in Vance's trial on charges of misconduct and unprofessional conduct.

Guillaune testified that Vance withdrew two checks of $125 each and another of $95 for his expenses in special investigation work. The Bar Association had claimed that no such person as Frank Williams, to whom the money was made payable, existed.
The witness said he worked for the county under an alias of Frank Williams.

The Bar Association recommended the disbarment of Thomas as a result of its investigation of the case.

Gangster Is King; Capone Products Only In Saloons

Survey Reveals Hoodlum Gets Cut on Everything Sold in Chicago District — Competitors and Their Products Smashed by Henchmen

Chicago, Oct. 2.—(AP)—A report was printed by the Chicago Tribune today that the Alphonse Capone Syndicate has virtually put the saloons and roadhouses of Cook county on a chain store basis for everything from beer to pretzels.

Even towels and table linen must be purchased from a Capone Company and laundered by a Capone laundry, according to the revelations which the newspaper said had been made. Gingerale, soda pop and carbonated water must be bought through the Capone syndicate. Thus Capone collects a profit from the pretzels which the customer munches with the beer he gulps.

Two men, the paper said, recently entered a Chicago saloon. The bartender paled and whispered to a customer, "syndicate men—you know, Capone."

"We're using your beer," the bartender stammered to the pair.
"We know that," said the taller of the two. "But whose gingerale have you got?"

"Why, the standard kind," replied the bartender, pointing to a case back of the bar.

The shorter of the two strode to the case, pulled a pipe from his pocket and smashed the contents.
"We're moving in six cases of our gingerale," the two informed the bartender. "And you'll lay our gingerale from now on."

One of the men dumped a bowl of pretzels on the floor, advising the bartender he would buy the Capone brand in the future.

The Tribune said that similar incidents occurred in most of the saloons and roadhouses of the county

WIDOW COLLINS TO MAKE TRIP

Chance to Identify Two Suspects Now Held in Florida Given Her

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Before another day dawns, Mrs. Benjamin Collins will have a chance to say definitely whether the two men believed held at Daytona Beach, Fla., had anything to do with the murder of her husband.

With her lawyer, William A.
Kelly, her sister-in-law, Miss Helen Collins; Fred Gunder, assistant district attorney of Suffolk county, Mrs. Collins left last night for Daytona Beach. She is due to arrive there late tonight. Before deciding to make the journey,
Mrs. Collins studied photographs of the two men—Dr. Leslie D.
Ritchie, 51, and his son, William,
23.

She said, after looking at telephotographed pictures, she could not be sure but that she doubted if the Ritchies were the men, who boarded her husband's cruiser the night of September 9, killed him and then abducted her.

Suffolk county authorities wired Daytona Beach police to detain the father and son 24 hours more to give Mrs. Collins a chance to see them.

One lead in the murder investigation collapsed late yesterday when it developed that a body washed ashore on Long Island Sound Tuesday was not that of William Smith, as had been supposed. William Smith was an acquaintance of the Ritchies, he was located in Bloomfield, N. J., and said he knew nothing about the Collins case.

INQUEST IS ENDED

Huntington, N. Y., Oct. 2.—(AP)—
After hearing brief testimony about the autopsy, the coroner's inquest into the strange murder of Benjamin P. Collins of Stamford, was closed today with the mystery of his death still unsolved.

MAUDE LOWTHER HAS NO FEARS NOW

CONFIDENT SHE WILL BE SENT TO REFORMATORY FOR MURDER

Columbus, O., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Her execution in the electric chair, scheduled for today, halted by an indefinite stay pending disposition of an appeal, Mrs. Maude Lowther, the half-Indian girl from West Virginia, spent the day in her cell in city prison here reading a Bible and working a cross word puzzle.

The day on which she was originally sentenced to walk to the electric chair in Ohio penitentiary found the confessed slayer of Mrs.
Tilby Smith firm in the conviction she will never be executed. Her guards say Mrs. Lowther has almost forgotten she is under sentence of death. They quoted her as saying: "I'll never be electrocuted—the state will send me to the Marysville reformatory for women instead." She believes the state of Ohio will never execute a woman.
Tilby Smith, for whose love
Mrs. Lowther killed Mrs. Smith, awaits execution.

HUSBAND TESTIFIES WIFE INSURED TWO POISONED CHILDREN

Mother Now on Trial for Murder of Daughters

Lebanon, Ind., Oct. 2.—(AP)— John W. Simmons was questioned today at the trial of his wife, Carrie Barrett Simmons, charged with poisoning her two daughters, concerning insurance policies taken out by members of his family.

The Hancock county farmer said he and his wife a few weeks before the deaths of the daughters, Alice Jean and Virginia, had taken out policies for $5,000 each with their children named as beneficiaries.

Simmons said his two sons, Dale and George, also had taken out policies for $2,500 each with their parents named as beneficiaries.

The calling of Simmons as a state witness was a surprise move and was made possible by the Simmons family agreeing to take the stand to reveal all they knew concerning the poisoning of the two girls.

Direct examination of Simmons was concluded and he was turned over to Willet Parr, defense counsel, for cross examination. Parr had Simmons repeat his version of preparations in the Simmons home, near Greenfield, for the family reunion picnic here last June at which the Simmons girls were poisoned.

The state charges the children's mother was placing poison in sandwiches which were served at the picnic.

BANKER KIDNAPED BY BANDIT GANG

Hartford City, Ind., Oct. 2.—(AP)—
Four bandits robbed the Citizens State Bank here at 12:25 p. m., today of $30,000, kidnaped Elmer Lucas, the assistant cashier and mayor of Hartford City, and escaped.

The bandits left in a black sedan bearing an Iowa license number 158,927. A posse of citizens and officers fired approximately a dozen shots as the bandits left the bank and they believed they wounded at least one of them.

The posse immediately began an intensive search and officers of surrounding cities were notified.

NATIONAL CITY BANK READY FOR MERGER

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The National City Bank, second largest in the United States, and the Bank of America, National Association, awaited today only the fulfillment of certain conditions to become a merged institution—the second largest bank in the country.

Directors of both banks approved the merged plans yesterday. The actual consolidation was made conditional upon the deposit of 85 per cent of the shares of the Bank of America stock with a special committee before October 17.

The combined assets of the National City Bank and the Bank of America are approximately $100, 000,000 less than the $2,129,000,000 assets of the Chase National Bank, the largest in the world.

FATE OF YOUNG BRIDE, JAILED AND DEPORTED LIKE OPERA TRAGEDY

ANASTASIA STRADYGA came to America from Poland on her sister's passage.

TORN FROM her husband of a few months, she was arrested for illegal entry into the United States.

SHE NOT only faces deportation, but a 90-day jail sentence imposed by a federal judge as an object lesson.

ANASTASIA STRADYGA

By BONITA WITT

Cleveland, Oct. 2.—Few brides have the fate of Anastasia Stradyga, 29. She was torn from her new husband, hailed before a federal judge, sentenced to 90 days in jail and made to understand she would be deported and barred from the United States forever, all within a few hours.

The charge is that she came to America two years ago on her sister's passport. As she sits in her cell, bewildered, frightened, her response, is, she did not know, she thought one had a right to a sister's passport. She had understood it

GERMAN PRESIDENT NOW 84 YEARS OLD

VON HINDENBURG CELE-BRATES OCCASION WITH FAM-ILY; PRESENTS ARE FEW

Berlin, Oct. 2.—(AP)—President
Von Hindenburg, who leads the Fatherland in peace as well as in war, was 84 years old today and the world beat a tattoo of congratulations upon his doorstep.

Cablegrams, telegrams, and letters came by the thousands to the executive mansion to wish him many happy returns and many more anniversaries. A typical message from the government of Saxony read: "The nation remains confident of your leadership toward a better future."

Owing to the pressure of state affairs the president spent the day with his family instead of hunting and fishing on his country estate among the peaceful hills of Bavaria. The first to greet him were his granddaughters, Gertrude, 8, and Helga, 7, and his son Oscar.

As a possible sign of the times, there were fewer presents than in previous years, but petitions of all sorts increased tenfold.

Thirteen years ago on this very date he saw the hitherto impregnable Hindenburg line waver and collapse under the united assaults of the Allied forces under Marshal Foch.

JUDGE INDICTED FOR BLACKMAIL

Columbus, O., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Former Probate Judge Homer Z. Boswick and four other persons, including a former assistant prosecuting attorney, were indicted on charges of blackmail by the Franklin county common pleas court grand jury today in connection with an alleged conspiracy to obtain the return of a ring to the judge from Mrs. Opal Eversole.

TREASURY REPORT

Washington, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Treasury receipts for September 30 were $108,297,476.35; expenditures $113,
308,843.90; balance $802,778,618.71.
Customs receipts for September were $35,500,210.16.

CARDINALS EVEN UP SERIES; ATHLETICS TROUNCED 2-0

Stores Are Looted By Rioters Led By Parliament Member

Unemployed Mobs Go on Rampage When British
Dole Is Reduced

London, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Bitter rioting against reductions in the dole by unemployed in Glasgow, last night was led by a member of parliament.

John McGovern, Labor M. P., who engaged in a brawl in the House of Commons, several weeks ago, was arrested on charges of forming a mob in Glasgow and he and a number of his followers spent the night in jail.

Some 50,000 persons assembled on the Glasgow green last night in defiance in order by police that they could not hold a meeting.
McGovern and his lieutenants refused to disperse the gathering mounted officers rode into their midst.

Hatchets, hammers, iron bars, and broken bottles were brought into play against batons as the mob slowly gave way. Routed at length the rioters smashed into shops and looted shelves as they fled.

Meanwhile, several constables had forced their way through to McGovern's side and attempted to move him and his four bodyguards.
The men resisted and a sharp struggle ensued in which they got the worst of it.

Some time later a second outbreak occurred in the Garnard section while most of the police force was patrolling the central part of the city. Organized bands of looters raided many food shops and stole an unknown quantity of goods.

In London and Bristol demonstrations peacefully showed their antagonism to the government's economy measures by parading with signs reading "not a penny off the dole," "down with the national government," and "we support our naval comrades," referring to the recent Naval mutiny over pay reductions.

Rioting and looting among the unemployed broke out again early today and mounted policemen charged them repeatedly before they were able to restore order.

AFFAIR WITH JUDGE REVEALED BY CLERK

ESTRANGED HUSBAND TOOK $1500 FROM JURIST AND THEN CAME BACK HOME

Portsmouth, O., Oct. 2.—(AP)—A story of friendship with a judge whom she blamed for alleged shortages in her account was told by Mrs. Marguerite A. Tidd, 35, former municipal court clerk who is on trial charged with embezzling $2,115.

Mrs. Tidd, testifying in her own behalf yesterday, declared Municipal Judge William R. Sprague, 50, was responsible for discrepancies in her account, but that she resigned and took the responsibility with the understanding she would receive half-pay and be re-employed after the November election.

She also declared that as a result of her friendship with the judge, he paid her husband $1,500 to prevent the latter from "filing suit." She became acquainted with Sprague three years ago and went to New York with him on a week's trip which cost the judge $500, she testified.

"I made no attempt to get money from Sprague and was not a party to the suit," Mrs. Tidd said, in telling of the alleged financial transaction between her husband and the judge.

"My husband told me he got $1,500 and then he came back to live with me after we were separated 10 days. x x x I loved my husband and wanted him back."

Mrs. Tidd resigned her clerkship last May 3.

CLEARED BY JURY

Wilmington, O., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Deliberating less than an hour a common pleas court today acquitted Frank Richardson, a county commissioner and former commissioner
C. C. Terrell and Denis Stephens on charges of misconduct in office.

HORSEBACK CORPS OF NURSES RIDES TO MOTHERS' AID

Lexington, Ky.—(P)—A mounted corps of nurses in remote parts of the Appalachian mountains is saving the lives of many mothers and babies.

Mrs. Mary Breckenridge of Lexington, granddaughter of a vice president of the United States, organized the Frontier Nursing Service six years ago.

She took as her model the famous Queen's nurses, who give midwife service in lonely outposts in the Highlands of Scotland, where conditions closely parallel those in Kentucky.

Like the royal northwest mounted police, these 28 adventurous young women composing the first unit of the service live in the saddle and scout at hardships.

The mounted nurses always are ready to ride, saddlebags packed for emergencies and lantern filled. They scale trackless, icy slopes and swim rivers with their mounts if necessary, always bearing in mind their maxim: "If the father can come for the nurse, the nurse can reach the mother."

And after the service is performed, the charge to the mountaineer parents is $5, which may be paid in kind or in labor.

A supply of pickled onions, skins of "varmints," split-bottom chairs, fodder or shoeing for the nurse's horses, or carpentry may be accepted in lieu of cash.

The fee includes care before and after the child's birth as well. The service which started with two nurses in a four room cabin, now has grown to 28 nurses, stationed at nine centers dotting a 700 mile district.

Ultimate goal of the organization is extension of nurses along the "forgotten frontier" of a 1,000 mile district.

In less than six years, more than 800 maternity cases have been tended with but one death of a mother.

Our idea of a bad insurance risk is an innocent bystander.

NEW VOLUME ON OHIO IN CARNEGIE LIBRARY

A new volume in the "See America First" series—"Ohio: The Beautiful and Historic," by Charles Edwin Hopkins is now in the Carnegie Library.

There is no state among the forty-eight which has a nobler history of achievement than Ohio. Its story is painted with the colors of blood and fire; its pioneers sacrificed all that we hold dear to claim its hills and valleys and plains for civilization. Its scenic assets are many. There are no snow-capped mountains, but Ohio claims the vast blue expanse of Lake Erie, the rugged precipices and ferny gorges of the Hocking Hills, the fruitful luxuriance of rich river valleys and some of our great cities. Ohio has the distinction of having elevated to the office of presidency of these United States a more eminent man than any other state in the Union.

The purpose of this book is to put before you the story of Ohio's interesting places—beautiful, historic, romantic. Through its pages the reader may make a tour of the State as it is and as it was. Mr. Hopkins writes with a delightful simplicity of style and has made his book one of deep interest for the traveler and general reader alike.

"The 'See America First' series is a vast enterprise that will eventually include the whole of the North American continent. Each volume is superb in the richness of its binding and the beauty of its color and duotone plates—so superb in fact that one can hardly make comparisons among them, and needs must fall back on the Irishman's compliment that 'they mutually excel each other.'"

This is a beautiful book and worth reading from every standpoint.

Picks For Garden Hoes

Birmingham, Ala.—(P)—Hardy miners of the coal fields near here have exchanged picks and shovels for gardening implements to make money while they are idle.

Early in the spring when the mines were closed, Dr. W. T. Morgan, a minister who spent his boyhood digging coal, returned to direct a program of rehabilitation.

A tract of 40 acres was obtained and cleared. Timber from the land furnished 75,000 feet of lumber for buildings which have been constructed.

Vegetables and truck crops were planted to provide for immediate needs and a canning factory with a daily capacity of 3,000 cans was donated, in which food for winter use is being preserved. As a result more than 200 persons have three meals daily.

It'll Be No Trouble To Break This Will

London — (P) — Christopher Stone, whose voice is well known over the English radio, plans to make his last will and testament on a phonograph record.

He means to make it an intimate and dignified personal souvenir of himself and his wishes because he thinks most wills have too much of the "bedside manner."

But whether it will be legal is another matter. The chief requirement for a will in England, is that it must be visible.

LARGE LAKE GOES DRY

LINDBERGH'S UPSET IN FLOOD WATERS OF CHINESE RIVER

It was expected the fliers would depart for Shanghai on the Hermes Sunday with the damaged craft.

Two planes from the Hermes, which were circling above when the accident occurred, later made a survey up the river.

It was the second case of serious trouble to the Far East.

August 18 they were forced by motor trouble to descend at Avatcha Bay, on the southern end of the Kamchatka Peninsula shortly after taking off from Petropavlovsk for a 987 mile flight to Nemuro, Japan.

Upon preparing the trouble they started again, but encountered a thick fog midway of the Furile Island chain, about half way between Petropavlovsk and Nemuro and managed to land at Ketoi Island, the "black hole" of the Kuriles, upon finding a gap in the fog.

The Lindberghs moored their plane in the dangerous waters near the island and spent an anxious night. The next day the Japanese steamship Shimushiri Maru arrived at the scene in response to orders from the Japanese government.

Lindbergh described that night aloft as one of the worst in his experience. The Japanese ship next day towed the plane to a safer anchorage on the island and stood by during the second night. Motor trouble developed for Lindbergh again and on the third day the plane was towed by the ship to Muroto Bay, 15 miles distant. There the Lindberghs spent a day during which the motor trouble was overcome.

They started for Nemuro again,

FIRE CREWS PUMP MUD INTO GUSHER CHOKE OFF FLAMES

Kilgore, Tex.—(P)—The long-blazing Bell and Graddy gusher near Kilgore finally was put out much as a housewife turns off the flame in a gas range—by cutting off the supply of fuel.

However, the process, though similar, was much more laborious. Workmen dug a 170-foot tunnel, tapping the well 25 feet below the tunnel and shut off the flow of oil by pumping mud into the well.

FIFTH INNING

Athletics—Foxx walked, the fourth ball being wide. Miller singled to right and Foxx stopped at second. It was the first hit off the outpaw and the infield gathered around to steady him. Dykes bunted to Bottomley and was tagged out as both runners advanced easily. It was a beautiful sacrifice.

There was another conference with Hallahan in the box. Williams walked, filling the bases. It was an intentional pass. Earnshaw grounded to Frisch and into a double play, Frisch to Gelbert to Hottonley.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Cardinals—Gelbert grounded out to Foxx unassisted. Hallahan fanned, taking a third called strike. Flowers popped a high foul to Foxx.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SIXTH INNING

Bishop fanned, lunging at a slow ball and missing it by a foot. Haas hit sharply into left for a single. Cochrane fled out to Watkins who made a sensational catch of the drive as he bumped into the pavilion wall. Simmons grounded to Flowers and Haas was forced at second. Flowers to Gelbert.

No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Cardinals—Watkins grounded out, Bishop to Foxx. Frisch hit down the left field line for two bases. Bottomley fanned, swinging at a fast ball with plenty of hop on it. Earnshaw was bearing down. Hafey grounded out, Dykes to Foxx.

SEVENTH INNING

Athletics—Foxx singled over Frisch's head. Miller bunted to Gelbert and Foxx was forced at second, but Miller beat the relay to first. Bottomley raced over and grabbed Dykes' pop foul directly in front of the Athletics' bench. Williams walked, the fourth ball being low. On a wild pitch Miller ran to third. Earnshaw fanned, swinging at the third strike.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Cardinals—Martin smashed a hard single to left field. It was his fifth hit of the series. Martin stole second. Cochrane's throw was wide and Williams had no chance to try for a put-out. Wilson grounded out, Bishop to Foxx and Martin went to third. Gelbert bunted to Earnshaw and Martin scored, the pitcher's toss to Cochrane was high and Martin slid safely across. It was a sacrifice and a fielder's choice as Gelbert reached first. Hallahan bunted to Foxx whose throw to Williams missed Gelbert but Hallahan was nipped on the relay to first. Flowers was out, Bishop to Foxx.

One run, one hit, no errors, one left.

EIGHTH INNING

Athletics—Bishop popped to Frisch. Haas lined out to Hafey. Cochrane walked, the fourth ball being low. Simmons hoisted a high fly to Gelbert.

No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

Cardinals—Watkins fanned, swinging at a curve. Frisch fled out to Simmons who made a pretty gloved hand catch on the run near the wall. Bottomley walked. It was the first pass for Earnshaw. Hafey hit a high fly to Haas.

NINTH INNING

Athletics—Foxx walked, the fourth ball was high. Miller fled out to Hafey. Dykes walked. Captain Frisch came in for a conference with the battery as well to squawk about the decision on the last ball. Williams fanned on a curled third strike that was close to the outer edge. Moore batted for Earnshaw. Moore missed the third strike but Wilson dropped the ball and Moore reached first as the catcher threw to third base. Apparently think the game was over. There was a riot of confusion as the Cardinals were galloping off the field. They were sent back and the bases were filled. Bottomley raced over against the field boxes in right field and made a spectacular catch of Bishop's foul.

No runs, no hits, one error, three left.

The purple haze of another soft Indian summer day settled down upon the National League ball park as the world champion Philadelphia Athletics sought to beat the St. Louis Cardinals again in the second game of the world series.

It was another good day for fast ball pitchers, cloudy enough to keep the sun in hiding most of the time and the languorous weather suited perfectly the thousands of shirt-sleeved patrons, who poured into the open bleachers from the time the "rush seat" sale opened early in the morning.

It suited Gabby Street, manager of the Cards, too, for he had "Wild Bill" Hallahan, left-handed conqueror of the champions in one of the 1930 series games, one of the fastest pitchers in the National league, primed to get back the advantage the Athletics gained yesterday trouncing big Paul Derringer in the opening game.

There was every indication that Connie Mack, off to a great start in quest of his third straight world championship, would answer speed with speed. His logical pitcher was "Big Jarge" Earnshaw, second only and not always that, to the speed king, Lefty Grove.

While an apparently indafatigable band, strengthened by the ad-

FLIGHT—20 YEARS AGO AND TODAY

Sept. 17, 1911, Rogers left New York, landed at Pasadena, Nov. 4, actual flying time, 84 hours 2 minutes.

DOOLITTLE'S TIME
11 hours 15 minutes.

As you recall the recent lightning-like dash of Jimmy Doolittle from Los Angeles to New York, in 11 hours and 15 minutes—a new record—consider, for a moment, the feat of another transcontinental flyer, Calbraith P. Rogers. On the 17th of September, just 20 years ago, he set out from New York, in his flying machine, to strike out boldly for California.

Rogers arrived in Pasadena on Nov. 4, after actually being in the air 84 hours and two minutes. At that time his flight was heralded as nothing short of miraculous. Rogers and his crude airplane are at top, and Doolittle and his speedy ship, below. The planes are an interesting contrast.

dition of a crooner and fortified by an extra day of practice, entertained the bleacher crowd with tricky interpretations of the very latest blues, the gossip filtered about the park concerned this same Grove.

The lanky conqueror of the Cardinals tonight today with a blister on the tip of the middle finger of his pitching hand and there seemed a slight chance that the injury might restrict his efforts to relief hurling at least until late in the series. Coupled with this situation was the report that Earnshaw, generally accepted as the Athletics' starting pitcher today, despite the stubborn reticence of Manager Connie Mack, was suffering from a kink in his elbow. Rube Walberg, another fast ball, fast curve southpaw, was nominated to take his place by the grand stand nominators.

Grove, contemptuous of the Cardinals' power despite the fact that he was hit rather hard in his 6 to 2 victory yesterday, had plenty to say about the blister, carefully taped and bandaged.

"Yeah, I got a little blister," he admitted, "but that won't bother me. I'll just bear down harder. Naw, I wasn't bearing down yesterday except once in a while when I had to. What was the use?"

After the band was dispossessed from its station on the grass of the outfield and gently conveyed to the sidelines, the Cardinals stormed out on the field for batting practice.

There was nothing in their determined bearings to indicate that Lefty Grove had fractured any spirits yesterday as he poured his fast ball down the middle. Old Burleigh Grimes, mainstay of the Card pitching staff last season, but relegated to a secondary role this year, tossed them up to the batters.

One Cardinal after the other—Chick Hafey, Jim Bottomley, the spectacular young Pepper Martin, Chunky Jimmy Wilson, Frankie Frisch—hammered Grimes' curves to the fences. They were very serious about it, and as each man finished his turn at the plate he joined a group practicing bunts.

Despite the perfect baseball weather the covered stands in right field, jammed almost to capacity at this time yesterday, were little more than half filled an hour before game time. The reserved sections, too, were not filling as rapidly as for the first game but there was every prospect of an other crowd of close to 35,000.

With scarcely a glance toward the prespiring rival hitters, the Athletics sauntered casually from their dugout for an hour of practice.

Ed Rummel, the knuckle ball veteran, was the first pitcher to face the sluggers, and Max Bishop promptly saluted him with a clout that bounced off the roof of the covered stands in right field. Mickey Cochrane parked a smash in the pavilion seats and trotted around the bases, carefully touching each sack. Al Simmons, greatest hitter of the day, followed that same formula in batting practice,

CITY IS ON DIRECT ROUTE

Detroit Traffic to Be Routed This Way

A representative of The Hobbs Touring Guide was in this city Friday, obtaining information for the purpose of listing and mapping a route from Detroit to Maysville by way of this city, in order that south bound traffic may be directed over the route as one of the most direct way to the south.

From Lexington Federal Route 68 is followed, thence over 28 to Hillsboro and this city, and north out of here the route will be either through Springfield and thence north to Bellefontaine, Kenton, and Findlay, or else over 28 to London and Maysville, thence over 31 to Kenton, and northward to Toledo and Detroit.

The guide will be ready for distribution within the next two or three months, by which time the new bridge over the Ohio river at Maysville, will be in use.

It is expected that the guide will do much toward turning a great deal of new traffic southward through this city, and it is taken as indication of what may be expected in the way of increased traffic generally when the new bridge is opened.

yesterday and he hit a home run seven innings later.

Apparently believing that what worked yesterday should go just as well today, Simmons pasted a ball into the last toe of bleacher seats in left field. His mates stood at respectful attention as the great one, a wide grin on his features, trotted around the bases. Then in turn, each right-hand hitter stepped to the plate and hammered one of Rummel's pitches into the distant seats.

It was an amazing display of straightaway power and was doubly impressive following the batting exhibition of the Cardinals, who failed to park a single ball outside the field in over an hour of hitting. The rabid rooters in the sun seats sat in silence as though fascinated, and the only break in the solid bank of humanity came when each little group scrambled for the distance clouts that fell in their sectors.

Earnshaw, despite the report of the ailing arm, batted in the pitcher's position as the Athletics ran down the batting order against the slants of Lew Krausse, youngest of the A's tossers.

HOG PRICE TREND AT CHICAGO FOR YEAR DOWNWARD

Survey Made to Show Effect on Conditions in Fayette-Co.

By W. W. Montgomery.

The price of hogs and the price of corn is the barometer of business and bank deposits in Fayette county. What has happened on the Chicago hog market during the current year is of vital interest to farmers since about 75 per cent of the gross income on farms here is for hogs.

A review of the 1931 Chicago hog market will reveal that prices for the year has been downward from a high of $7.75 per cwt. average cost to packers on Monday, January 12 to a low of $5.05 per cwt. on Monday, September 28. The average weight of hogs for the month of January was 235 pounds. The weight has increased each month until for September it was 244 pounds.

The average weight, average cost and receipts of hogs at Chicago for the one week ending last week, September 26, 1931, compared to the same corresponding week last year ending September 27, 1930, is as follows:

1930—Ave. weight 237, ave. cost $9.50, receipts 131,716.

1931—Ave. weight 235, ave. cost $5.19, receipts 118,001.

The trend of receipts, costs and weights of hogs on Chicago market are revealed in the following figures which indicates that receipts are not necessarily a cause of low prices. Industrial conditions, unemployment with decreased export demand are probably paramount factors.

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Oct. 2.—(P)—The stock market found it lacked the strength for a sustained upturn today, but it experienced no further convulsions of heavy selling.

A better tone in the bond market, particularly in the U. S. government issues, was regarded as a sign that distress liquidation had been completed, and there was considerable talk in brokerage circles of good buying in the share market on scale down. A brisk first-hour upturn of 1 to 5 points, however, attracted no following, and was soon lost.

Soft spots cropped out here and there. Losses of about 2 to 3 points appeared in Union Carbide, Eastman, Coca Cola, and Allied Chemical. Rails sagged after midday, several issues losing a point or so. U. S. Steel sold up 1½ in the early trading, but this advance was later replaced by a moderate loss. American Telephone pushed up 2½, only to fall back about 4 from the top. American Tobacco B rose 5, and fell back 6. Trading was most active on the advance, however, and dwindled considerably as the list slid back.

On the whole, speculative sentiment in Wall street brightened considerably with the lifting of selling pressure. Nevertheless, the fact that advances so regularly attract fresh selling, possibly representing the liquidation of stock bought for support purposes, appears to have destroyed confidence on the bull side. Furthermore, many traders are reluctant to follow upturns unsupported by compelling signs of general business improvement.

NEWS BRIEFS FROM WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 2.—(P)—W. E. Waterman has been elected chairman of the board of the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Co., a new post, and James M. Porter was elected president. The elections followed the retirement of Luis Toro from the offices of president and director of the company. Mr. Toro has been head of the Porto Rican company since its founding thirty years ago. He also retired as chairman of the boards of the Congress Cigar Co. and Waitt & Bond, Inc., affiliates of Porto Rican. Mr. Waterman succeeds him in those posts.

SOCIETY PAGE

THE District Presbyterian meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian churches of the West, Bloomingburg, of the First Presbyterian church, Thursday for an all day session.

Mrs. S. A. Dewey, vice president, presided. Each society sent its quota of delegates and there were quite a number of society members who were not delegates in attendance.

The morning session convened at 9:30, with Mrs. Harry Ankrom, president of the local society, in charge of devotionals. Splendid reports were presented.

Mrs. Willis Kilpatrick, of Greenfield, Presbyterian president, presented various branches of Presbyterian work at both sessions and conducted a round table discussion.

Miss Ellison, of Cincinnati, who is at the Presbyterian Home in Sydney, Ohio, while home from Porto Rico on a furlough, made an intensely interesting address. Miss Ellison was engaged in nursing in one of the hospitals of Porto Rico when that country was devastated by the hurricane. She gave a graphic word picture of conditions there—people still without homes and everything taken from them—finding chapels and the hospital their refuge.

She also gave a sketch of the Sydney Home and the comfort provided for the older people there. A waiting list of two hundred shows how many desire to make their home in it.

Mrs. John Gleim conducted the afternoon devotionals and Mrs. Kilpatrick and Miss Ellison spoke.

Adding to the pleasure of both sessions were vocal solos by Mrs. Olive Ogan, of Bloomingburg, accompanied by Mrs. Maude Howland, also of Bloomingburg. In the afternoon Mrs. Bernice Grenell sang a lovely solo, accompanied by Mrs. Edith Hall.

At noon a most tempting luncheon was served to tempting forty and fifty women.

The dining room, fresh from redecorating and prettily decorated with cut flowers and plants, was very attractive. Each long table was centered with colorful autumn flowers.

Miss Emma Jackson was chairman of the luncheon committee, which included Mrs. J. W. Wilson, Mrs. H. E. Rosebaum, Mrs. N. B. Hall, Mrs. C. M. Edwards, Mrs. H. O. Noland, Mrs. Frank S. Jackson.

The Young Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of Grace Methodist church was entertained at the home of Mrs. A. O. Clark, Thursday afternoon, for a very interesting and pleasurable meeting. Mrs. Clark's assisting hostesses were Mrs. Forest Anders, Mrs. Herman Price, Mrs. Ray Pagan, Mrs. Tom Varlos, Mrs. W. W. Montgomery and Mrs. Ray Griffith. In anticipation of the meeting, Mrs. Clark's home was decorated prettily with Fall garden flowers and the committee planned delightful social features to follow the business.

The topic for the devotional service was "To Talk With God," with Mrs. Elmer Junk leading. Mrs. Forest Anders was program leader for the afternoon. The opening prayer was given by Mrs. W. T. Blume and following Mrs. Anders presented Mrs. Frank Blessing and Mrs. Martin Hughes, who gave entertaining echoes from the Lancaster Camp Meeting.

A vocal trio, Mrs. John Weade, Mrs. Harry Flee and Mrs. W. W. Montgomery, sang sweetly, "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

Rev. Blume gave a helpful talk on attending church and suggested that the society adopt the slogan, "Every member present at one of each Sunday's services." He also led in prayer.

Mrs. Fannie Hodson, in a very impressive service, installed the new year's officers and presented each office with a symbol. The new officials are Mrs. Frank Doyle, president, Mrs. Warner L. Southard, first vice president, Mrs. A. C. Crawford, second vice, Mrs. Jess Feagans, recording secretary, Mrs. Naomi Foster, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ruth Dial, treasurer, Mrs. William Hook, mite box secretary, Mrs. A. O. Clark, press reporter.

Mrs. A. D. Woodmansee was in charge of a clever, two act playlet, "Calico Mites," which was presented by a well chosen cast including Mrs. W. W. Montgomery, Miss Jean Inskeep, Miss Edna Mas Landon, Miss Carolyn Summers, Mrs. Elmer Johnson, Mrs. Lela Ogen, Mrs. Mabel Blessing, Mrs. Clarence Taylor, Mrs. Lucile Southard and Mrs. Clark Crawford and Herman Price.

Discussing finances of the society, a supper was planned for October 22.

During the congenial social hour, Mrs. Clark and her assistants served very tempting refreshments and promoted sociability among the large number of guests.

The annual convention of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs will be held at the Neil House, Columbus, October 7 and 8. On the opening day there will be registration and reception, the welcoming address by Hon. James Thomas, Mayor of Columbus, and the message of the president, Mrs. M. S. Thompson, of Lima.

Authorities will present the subjects of "School Gardens," "New Plant Developments," "New Garden Methods," "The Garden Club's Opportunities and Obligations with Regard to Conservation," and "Ohio's Heritage of Natural Life."

A banquet will be held in the evening, with music by Ann Charles String Quartet.

Thursday's sessions will be opened with greetings from Governor George White. Mr. Martin L. Davey, of Kent, will deliver an address and the subjects of civil beautification and flower arrangement will be presented.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30, Judge Florence Allen, of the Ohio Supreme Court, guest of honor.

From 2:00 to 4:30 there will be a garden tour in Columbus and vicinity and from 4:30 to 5:00 reception and tea at the Governor's Mansion. Miss Mary Louise White, hostess.

The convention will be of great interest and pleasure to all who are associated with Ohio's Garden Club. Members of the Fayette County Garden Club who attend will find the sessions of mutual helpfulness.

The Mt. Olive Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Minnie Johnson, Thursday afternoon, for the regular meeting, with twelve members and visitors assembled. Mrs. Gala Rayburn, president, opened the meeting and following a short business session, the guests were entertained with readings by Mrs. Edith Minton, Miss Lizzie Plymire and Mrs. Edna Irion.

Mrs. Vada McCoy won the prize in a clever contest provided by the hostess. Mrs. Irion assisted Mrs. Johnson in serving tempting refreshments.

Miss Effie Henkle will be hostess for the next meeting.

The Ladies' Aid of Maple Grove M. E. church was entertained by Mrs. Minnie Voss for its regular meeting. The president opened the meeting, followed by a devotional service.

During the business it was decided to serve lunch at the Rutledge sale on October 29.

For entertainment Mrs. Clara Seitz gave a humorous reading, followed by several contests. Mrs. Voss served an appetizing collation.

Mrs. Bessie White will entertain the next meeting and will be assisted by Mrs. Lee Clifton and Mrs. Ethel Rea.

The Young Matrons Class of the Bloomingburg church was entertained at the home of Miss Ina Jarvis, Thursday afternoon, for the regular meeting and a Halloween party. Miss Jarvis' assisting hostesses were Mrs. Ossie Hufman, Mrs. Maude Huffman and Mrs. John Redd.

The decorations were suggestive of Halloween and at the close of the business session the guests were invited to the basement, where they were met by a ghost and a witch. The basement was lighted dimly with orange and black candles. The hostesses provided contests for entertainment and served appropriate refreshments, for which the guests were seated in the shadows of the basement. Twenty-one members, one visitor and six children were in attendance.

Mrs. S. E. Boggs entertained the first fall meeting of the four table Thursday luncheon-bridge club at a lovely party, which launched the new club year most auspiciously.

For a luncheon of most delicious courses the hostess seated her guests at small tables, daintily appointed and centered with small baskets of pink rose buds.

Both the hour around the table and the afternoon of progressive contract bridge were altogether delightful. Mrs. Fred B. Creamer won the high score trophy.

Mrs. R. M. Huxley assisted the hostess in the hospitalities.

Mrs. Frank L. Stinson, of Columbus, was with the club and Mrs. Thomas J. Braden, of Ghormleys, and Mrs. Charles A. Reid luncheon guests.

LIVING AND LOVING

BY VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I've been married nearly three years to the man I love, but it seems I can't hold him. I have all I need to be perfectly happy except his love. Why can't I hold it?"

"I have nice clothes and take as much care of myself as I ever did, spending a lot of time with my hair, keeping my nails in shape and my complexion in as good shape as I possibly can."

"He's as good to me as it is possible for any man to be to his wife, but he does not want me around him, and never tells me that he loves me. I went with him quite a while before we were married, and he was quite a devoted lover."

"I'm still young, 21, and love him more than I would ever love anyone again, but can't stand to think of living the rest of my life without being loved in return."

"On a few occasions he has been out with other girls and admitted that he parked and necked. But he never kisses me unless I do something about it first, and then his kisses are just little pecks."

"You'll probably think this is only one side of the question. I do have my faults, too. His coldness has a terrible effect on me, and I'll cry for hours, can't control myself, but he thinks it's all staged. Won't you print this, or at least tell me your opinion?"

"LONESOME LOVER."

In an old book written in humorous vein supposedly by "Aunt Samantha," she likens a man courting a girl to one trying to catch a street car, and a married man to one who has caught his car, and no longer needs to exert himself, but settles down to enjoy his ride.

Now that may be the way your husband feels. He was the perfect lover before he got you. He exerted himself to please. But he now has you, and you love him so and mourn enough about his apparent indifference, to satisfy any man's ego, so why not let you rave and get all the fun he can out of it?

Many people are like that. They

Dear Diary

By ETHELDA BEDFORD

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, INC.

SUNDAY NIGHT.

DEAR DIARY: I kept my eyes straight ahead as I walked through what seemed endless corridors, flanked by massive gray walls, with tiny yellow lights burning in high ceilings.

My heels clicked peculiarly on the cement floor space where the carpet runners ended.

We kept walking, walking. His hand still rested on my arm. I was aware that he took short steps in order to keep in stride with me.

He is a tall, dark man, with velvety eyes, set nicely in his lean, angular face. His skin glows with a tan which no doubt he acquired during numerous seasons in Florida and such sunny places as Southampton, L. I.

I could feel him taking me in. His dark eyes ran over me easily, appraisingly—appraisingly, I hoped.

Diary, I was vain enough, that is feminine enough, to hope he didn't recall the dress and hat as the same he had seen me wearing the previous night.

(I had stopped at the corner florist's and bought a single white gardenia, which took me down 75 cents, if you please!) to serve as both ornament and perfume.

I must not seem too excited, too grateful, too overwhelmed, because this handsome stranger had taken such interest in me! I must try to believe, as Sue said, that there should be a break now and then for a poor but pure, unemployed working girl! I tried to say to myself, as my shoulder brushed against his tweedy sleeve as we stepped along together: "Well, old feel so important if someone is breaking their heart over their conduct. Your husband probably feels he's a devil of a fellow when you cry your eyes out over his indifference. It flatters his vanity immensely.

What he doesn't take into consideration, however, is the fact that you are young and attractive and won't keep on weeping and wailing indefinitely because of his cruelty. You'll doubtless meet someone who is anxious to console you for having married such a brute and then it will be his turn to lament.

girlie! Here you are! Right here in a Long Island movie studio, you prayed you'd be! Well, no why not? Why not!"

What was he saying? I turned my eyes toward him not trusting them to do right me.

"May I tell you how—how beautiful I think you are?" I voice was so still, so confident.

"My eyes were not doing right me. They were misting. They were forgetting to be controlled level, smiling when I told them smile. Now wasn't the time, I know my heart was beating its to death!"

His arm was finding its way about my back, about my waist, wasn't frightened. Why should be, I asked myself. I'd had good looking men try to caress me before, say nice things to me in soft, warm voice . . .

Extra Suds DO EXTRA WORK!

Chipso Bubbles the Dirt out Safely with Suds, Instead of Chemicals

By RUTH TURNER

Head of a Well-Known Test-Kitchen, New York City

You can't expect clothes to stand up under repeated drubbings with alkali soaps. Even the sturdiest cottons and heavier linens wear out too fast. Make this simple home test—if your laundry soap roughens your hands when you use it for dishes, it is too strong for your clothes.

"But my children's rompers and my husband's shirts get so grimy," you wail. "Don't I need a 'strong' soap to get these clean?"

No, you don't. Use Chipso. Chipso washes with suds, not chemicals. Twice as much rich, energetic suds in a minute from Chipso as you get with any other laundering soap you have ever used! The dirt simply bubbles away in these peppy, pure suds.

Your wash gets clean quicker with Chipso. It is easier. White clothes are whiter. Colored clothes stay brighter. They all wear longer. Chipso is easy on your hands—safe, even for silks. "Sudsier" than any other soap to use in the washing machine.

1. "I hate to take off my gloves," said a pretty young woman who came into my test-kitchen one day. "I'll be so glad when baby gets past the 'daily-wash' stage and I can have human-looking hands again."

"But what about your clothes," I said. "Don't they wear out?" "Of course—the destruction's awful. But what can I do?"

2. So I took our suds-testing machine and did an experiment for her. I put equal weights of Chipso and four other leading household soaps into glass cylinders with equal amounts of lukewarm water. Then I started the plungers and she gasped to see how in one minute the Chipso cylinder was full to the brim of suds, while mere skimmings floated on the tops of the others.

3. Then I explained the difference between a soap that washes with suds, like Chipso, and those that depend on chemicals to move the dirt. "Soaps that roughen your hands contain too much alkali for your clothes," I told her. "Use Chipso and let this extra amount of peppy suds do the work. Your clothes will be whiter; they will wear longer; and you won't be distressed about your hands."

when she decided not to return. I used her passport.

"A year later I met my husband, and a few months from then we were married.

"It was so sudden when the officers came. They put me into jail and my husband got me out on bond. But, of course, I told the judge I used my sister's passport. I did not know it was wrong. Then I was rushed to this jail immediately. My husband could not see me until the next day. He was frantic."

DOAK HAS LAST WORD

The inspector in charge of immigration in Cleveland, John R.

Northup, declares, "We are not persecuting Mrs. Srdyga. Illegal entry has reached amazing proportions and something must be done to curb it. In this instance, we do not even know whether Mrs. Srdyga will be deported. The facts have been sent to the board of review in Washington, which will lay them before Secretary of Labor. It does seem likely, though, that Mrs. Srdyga will be deported."

"Thus her first wedding anniversary will be passed alone—far away from her husband, from whom the law probably will forever separate her."

While airplanes are becoming more efficient every day, we have yet to see one that can make perfect landing on the blueprint of a municipal airport.

Under the disarmament treaty, the United States is allowed 135,000 tons in aircraft carriers. The Navy has one of 13,800 tons under construction, and plans to dispose of the 11,500 ton experimental carrier, Langley. With the Saratoga and Lexington, each of 33,000 tons, four of about 14,000 tons can be constructed at a cost of $25,000,000 each.

Under the London treaty, the United States is allowed 143,500 tons in light cruisers carrying six-inch guns. It has ten such craft, totaling 70,500 tons, leaving 73,000 tons to be constructed. The proposed measure is to provide that if the new warships are to have flying decks, seven of ten thousand tons each may be built. Otherwise ten of 7,000 tons each may be constructed. The cost of these vessels depending upon the type was estimated between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 each.

While the allotment in destroyer tonnage is 150,000, all but 77,000 becomes over the age limit next year, the year after all but 17,000 tons, and in three years all will be obsolescent.

MEXICANS GOING HOME IN GREAT MIGRATION
AS JOBS GROW SCARCE

Tide Which Brought Thousands North Across Rio Grande Now Recedes, Aiding Immigration Problem.

RETURNING HOME "in style."

MEXICAN FIELD WORKERS in Texas

Brownsville, Tex.—The "Little Brown Brother" is going home.

On passenger trains, on freight trains, in automobiles, trucks, wagons, on foot and on horseback he is going back to the Rio Grande, and crossing it into his native land.

He is settling the immigration problem which for years caused bitter factional and political strife in the United States, and threatened this country's relations with Latin America.

Tide Is Receding

The tide which forged northward across the Rio Grande several years ago, bringing 25,000 to 50,000 Mexicans annually into the United States, is now receding.

The repatriates are passing through border points in numbers far greater than they came into the United States.

From California alone approximately 100,000 Mexicans have gone back to their native land this year.

Probably as many have crossed over the Mexican border through Texas, Arizona and New Mexico. Probably 200,000 or more have returned to Mexico this year from the United States. Only estimates are possible because thousands of those returning do not even stop to say goodbye. They merely cross the Rio Grande and they are gone.

Economic Pressure

This great migration, easily comparable to the migration of the French Acadians, is a mighty tribute to the force of economic pressure.

For years officers along the Rio Grande spread a net to prevent illegal entry of Mexicans. But thousands of them sifted through, and went up into the interior.

They managed to get through because they were wanted as laborers. There was work for them to do, and they went to it. The threat of jail if they were captured and other punishment failed to deter them. Thousands were captured, but other thousands of "wetbacks" streamed across the Rio Grande, and remained.

(The "wetback" is the Mexican who swims the Rio Grande. The term is now loosely applied to any Mexican illegally in this country.)

Now the "wetback" is almost a curiosity.

The concentrated efforts of the border patrol are now centered mainly on criminal and other undesirable aliens who cross or attempt to cross into this country illegally. The Mexicans hunting labor have stopped coming.

Lack of jobs in the United States has quietly checked the tide which was flowing into this country and sitting through every effort of the law.

The thousands who came to get jobs are now returning without them.

They are returning voluntarily. The Mexican population of this country is fast adjusting to the demand—that is, most of it is leaving.

Every day there are wagons passing through here loaded high with household goods and farm implements. There are children and dogs and sometimes cows and goats.

Patiently the women and children and old men stand around immigration officers until their goods are checked out, and they are listed and papers examined. Then they creep across the half-million-dollar bridges to join their people.

The "Little Brown Brother" is back home.

NIGHT TRAINING OF DOGS TABOO

Fish and Game Protector Frank Hard is in receipt of a communication from the State Department calling attention to an order which prohibits the night training of fox and coon hounds, or other dogs which would pursue game, from October 15 to November 14.

No order has been issued against day training of dogs during that period.

The order is a new one, and is said to have been the result of many persons' taking fur bearing animals out of season, and penning them up until the season opens, then killing them for their fur.

DRAW THE COSTS

ANOTHER RACE OF GIANTS?

Perhaps this young Texas infant is the first of the species of a race of super-men which, scientists say, is about to make its reappearance in this world of ours. At any rate when he was a day old, the child weighed 16 pounds three ounces, measured two feet in length and required a full-sized pillow to sleep on. He is the seventh son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilary Roberts of Brady, Tex. His parents are considering Goliath, Hercules, Titan for a name.

WIDOW COLLINS

mainly ended the inquest with this statement:

"I find that Benjamin P. Collins met his death on the morning of September 10, 1931, in the waters of Long Island Sound as a result of injuries inflicted by person or persons unknown and that the direct cause of death was drowning."

The only witness at the inquest today was Dr. Vincent McAniff who assisted in performing the autopsy on Collins' body. He told of Collins' hands and feet being bound and said that he had been struck on the head eight times. He testified Collins died by drowning but said even if he had not been thrown in the water he would have died of the head injuries.

Australian Tourists Use Stamps, Gems For Cash

Sydney, (AP)—Rare postage stamps and diamonds are being used by some Australian travelers to overcome the difficulties of their country's depreciated currency.

To send 500 pounds to London costs about 150 pounds, but to send 500 pounds' worth of rare postage stamps or diamonds costs nothing.

Many tourists therefore leave for abroad with stamps and diamonds in their luggage instead of Australian letters of credit in their pockets.

IT'S NOT NEEDFUL TO DISTURB GOLD
STANDARD IN U. S.
Officials See No Reason for a Return to Bi-Metallism

Washington, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Hoover administration sees no reason for tampering with this country's gold standard or the return to bi-metallism.

In official circles, where this position was made clear, such agitation as is going forward for a return to bi-metallism was described as coming chiefly from Senators representing silver producing states.

Gold was characterized as the most satisfactory base for the country's monetary system and the temporary abandonment of the gold base by Great Britain and several other European countries was regarded as not reflecting a permanent policy.

The United States, with its coffers containing more gold than any other country in the world, was described as having no reason to abandon the gold standard.

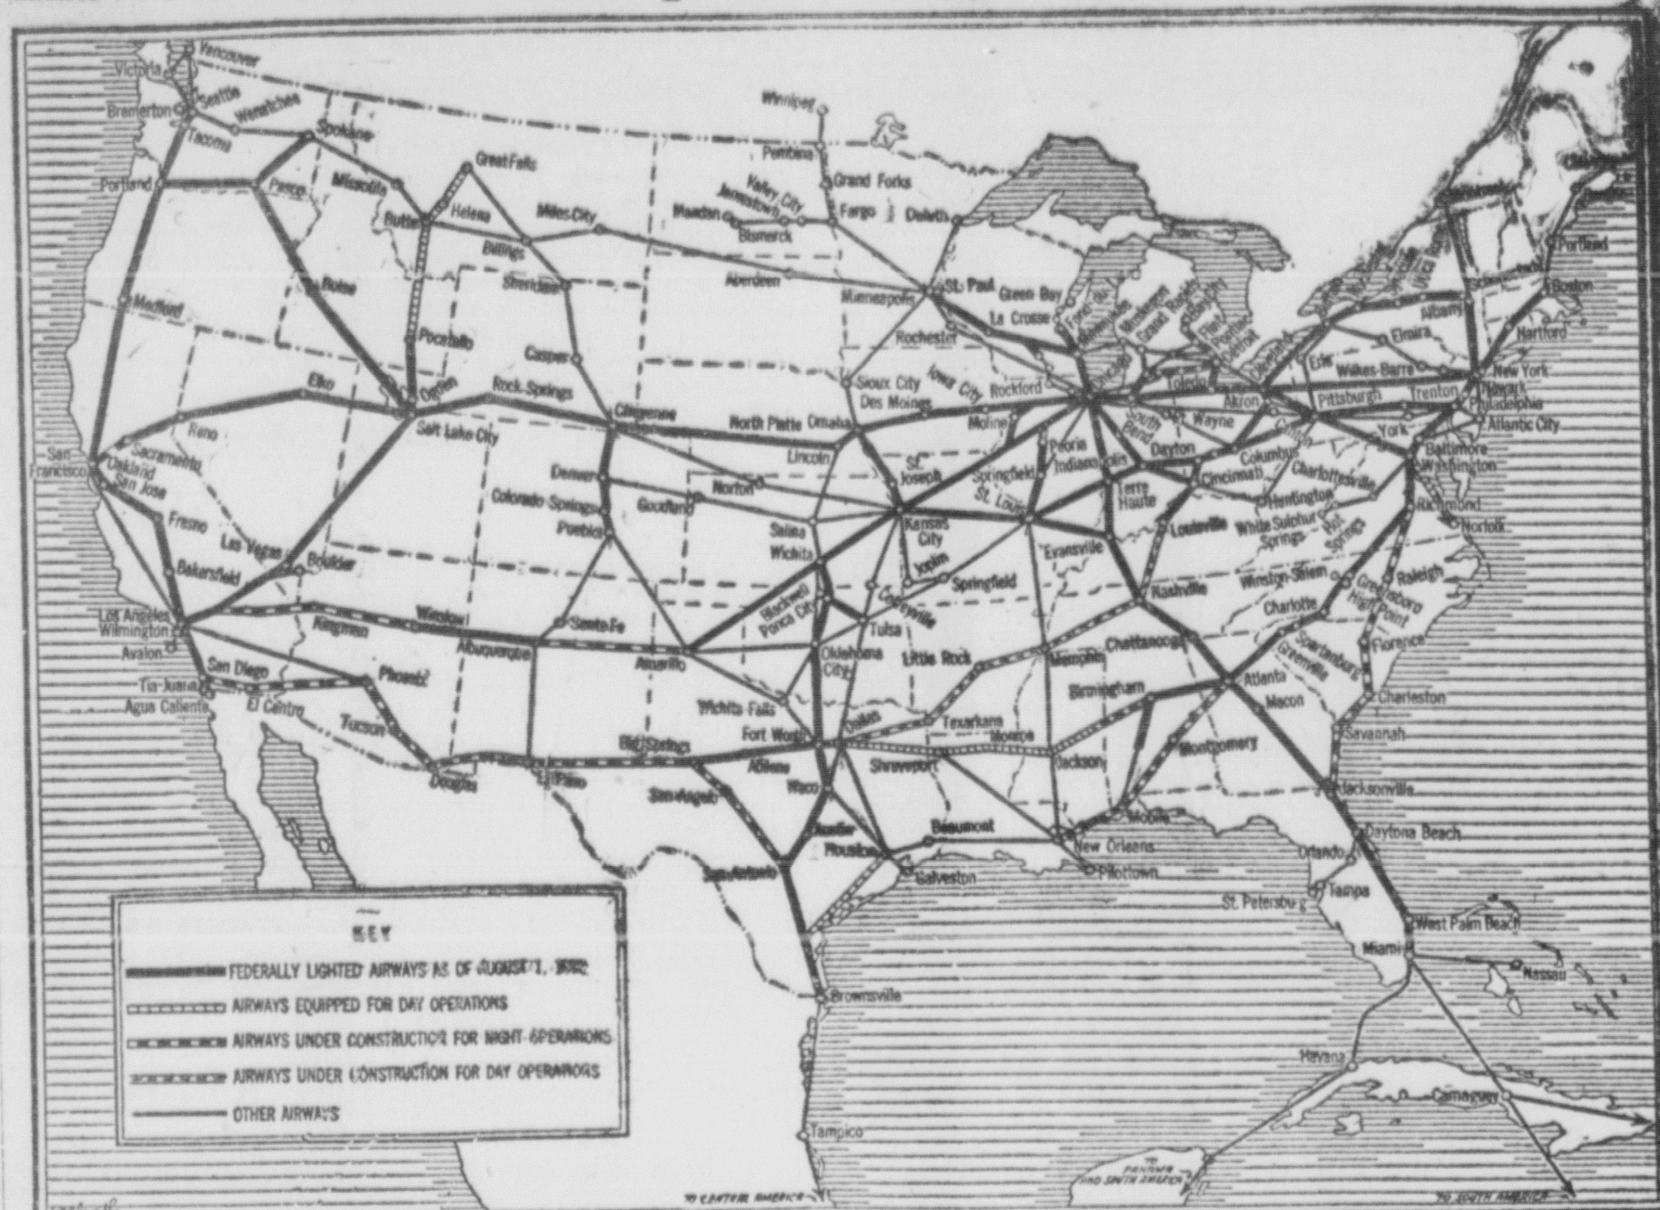

From Capitol Hill in recent days there have come predictions that bi-metallism would return as a public issue. The latest came from Senator Sheppard of Texas. Although not advocating bi-metallism, he said yesterday it might grow into a full fledged issue by 1932.

Senators Borah of Idaho, Walsh of Montana, shipstead of Minnesota and Couzens of Michigan have discussed the possibilities of bi-metallism recently.

The temporary abandonment of the gold standard by Great Britain and some other European countries has given heart to some of those most interested in silver and they have renewed demands for an international conference to discuss the rehabilitation of that industry.

The United States had a bi-metal currency system early in its existence. The first monetary system established by law on April 2, 1792, set two units of value, one

1,000 SANDWICHES
FOR TRUCK DRIVERS

The M. Hamm Company, during the past few days, has purchased approximately 1,000 sandwiches, dozens of pies, and coffee by the gallon, from the Bryant and Raley Restaurant, to feed the truck drivers who have been forced to stand in line, some of them for hours, during the rush for fertilizer.

Incidentally the company has been giving employment to all who were willing to work, throughout the week, and operated until three o'clock Friday morning, when most of the workmen were weary and sought sleep and rest. There is still a demand for men.

The line of wagons and trucks was just as long Friday as it had been any time this week, and the company was loading them as rapidly as possible.

FLASHES OF LIFE

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma City—There are folks who never heard of Young Stribling the box-fighter, but Governor Murray is not among them. After waiting an hour to pay his respects to the governor, Stribling, whom the office staff could not identify, departed. When the governor heard of it, he sent a messenger after the fighter, but Stribling had left town.

New York—The daughter of a famous stage star and the widow of a famous tenor are at law over a $50,000 emerald ring. Supreme court Justice McKeenhan is ordering Mrs. Dorothy Ingram, widow of Enrico Caruso, to show cause why she should not answer questions about the ring, which is claimed by Mrs. Dorothy Calvit, daughter of the late Lillian Russell. Mrs. Calvit says the ring was her mother's.

Florence, Italy — Automobile owners in northern towns still are trying to clean their cars of spots caused by synthetic "gas" used when the towns were "bombed" in recent air force sham fights. The "gas", falling as a fine rain, ate small bits in the surface of unprotected metal. Clothing of many spectators, too, was damaged.

BAKER LAND
BRINGS $91

337 Acres Sell to Plaintiff
in Short Order

It required only a few minutes to dispose of the J. M. Baker land of 337 acres, located on the Columbus road three miles northeast of this city, when it was offered at Sheriff's sale from the court house steps, Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

The land was in eight tracts, and was appraised at $112 per acre.

Bidding was lively from the start, the first bid being $75 per acre, and within a few minutes it had been bid off by the plaintiff, The Union Central Life Insurance Company, through the company attorney E. L. Bush.

The price at which the land was bid off is one of the highest paid for land in Fayette county the past year or two, and is taken to indicate that realty values are picking up.

Interesting

That was a very interesting item of news appearing in The Herald a few days ago—that item which informed us that a certain make of motor truck cost, three years ago, just the same amount of money that old hens of a weight equivalent to the truck would bring at the then market prices and that the same thing is true today. Although the same make of truck is heavier today and costs less, yet it requires the sales receipts of just the same proportionate number of pounds of old hens to pay for it.

Those who have read that interesting item are expressing, as a matter of course, differing opinions as to just what it reflects in existing economic conditions. Many have obtained, according to their comments, quite a bit of encouragement from it. They see in it, or think they do, proof that economic conditions are all right; that they are the same as they were three years ago—at least so far as motor trucks and old hens are concerned. We must admit that both are staples in the economic world and therefore, their relative market values are a barometer.

We fail to see, however, in those facts any cause for particular rejoicing. They do prove that prices have fallen in the same proportion and that means that the same old disparity in price levels exists.

Now, if the motor truck price had dropped and the price of old hens had not dropped at the same ratio, it would have indicated that the price levels, necessary to prosperity in agricultural districts, was being approached. The facts show just the contrary—all prices have declined in the same ratio and that doesn't help the nation's greatest industry—agriculture.

International Suspicions

Americans can laugh at the Japs for making a mountain out of a mole hill, but, if the situation were reversed and Herndon and Pangborn had been two Japanese fliers caught photographing American fortifications, there are sections of the United States where quite as much noise would have been made over the incident as has been made in Japan.

The two American aces are guilty of error in judgment if they are guilty of anything. Their first mistake was in hovering over armed fortifications in a foreign land to which they had not been legally admitted, and their second was in photographing those fortifications. They may or may not have taken the pictures knowing them to be rare, but it is quite certain that they would never have found their way into military channels for military uses.

Setting the situation on Pacific coast soil and correspondingly reversing the nationality of the personnel provides an opportunity for fairer judgment of the Japanese proceedings. Much would have been heard of the "Yellow Peril" from the jingoes who see in every oriental act and word an aggressive move against the United States.

Wheat For Chinese

Surplus wheat in the hands of the federal farm board has found a market in the drought areas of China, where, it is said ten million persons face starvation unless relief is forthcoming. The Chinese Famine Relief, United States of America, is negotiating, in behalf of the Chinese government, for the purchase of the grain on easy terms.

It is difficult to see how the United States can reject a fair offer if rejection means starvation for millions of human beings, but it is easy to understand why it has not become excited over the plan as a means of helping American wheat growers. No matter where it dumps its holdings wheat prices cannot react favorably, for the depressing agent this year is not last year's surplus but this year's unprecedented bumper crop. The Chinese cannot eat enough wheat to help Kansas, where the price is just as low as the crop is heavy, nor can the farm board afford to sell so low as to force prices further down.

Apparently the Chinese need is terribly real and urgent and John Earl Baker, advisor to the Chinese ministry of railways, denies that distribution would be impossible due to civil war and lack of transportation facilities. So the only obstacle to shipping the board's holdings to the Orient seems to be the question of authority, which it surely has.

LAVAL VISIT NOT SIMILAR TO M'DONALD

French Executive's Call Gives No Promise of Another Conference on the Rapidan

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Oct. 2.—French Premier Pierre Laval's heart-to-heart talk with President Hoover, scheduled to take place toward the end of October, promises to be a different type of international affair from Mr. Hoover's famous chat with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of England in 1929.

The president and his guest from London, it will be remembered, exchanged ideas seated together on a log spanning the Rapidan headwaters, whence their conversation has been called the "Rapidan conference" ever since.

M. Laval's visit will be pretty late in the season for a prolonged outdoor debate, besides which the Gallic cabinet chief is described as a formal person, who probably would not be at all at ease perched on a log across a rushing stream, with his feet dangling above the current.

Moreover, according to the testimony of folk who know him well, Premier Laval is Prime Minister MacDonald's opposite, temperamentally and philosophically. The Briton was "en rapport" with Mr. Hoover from the instant of their first handshake.

To anyone in the least acquainted with the president, the briefest observation of the English statesman was sufficient explanation of the evident liking which they showed for one another immediately. Clearly they reason along practically parallel lines naturally they are upon terms of almost perfect mutual understanding and in nearly complete agreement.

Equally with President Hoover, Prime Minister MacDonald is internationally minded.

Equally with the president, he is intensely humanitarian.

Nevertheless, neither Mr. Hoover nor the British prime minister has much faith in the populace's intelligence; Mr. Hoover has said so—"It is one of the most profound and important of exact psychological truths that man in the mass does not think but only feels"—and Prime Minister MacDonald frequently has implied a similar opinion.

Humor is only a rudimentary sense in either of them.

In short, they were ideal conferees, although nothing definite has yet materialized from the "Rapidan conference," which was contemplative of a reduction in world armaments.

Now Premier Laval is coming, and it will be interesting to observe what kind of a conference he and President Hoover have.

It will, of course, be an extremely pleasant conference, but it is good betting that it will be appreciably lacking in the unctuousness of the conference between President Hoover and Premier MacDonald.

Poetry For Today

DOWN BY THE LITTLE CRICK Down by the little crick I wander again and know

The mystical touch of the hand of spring wherever my wanderings go.

Down by the little crick I stray in a dream to hear

The babble of waters that rush and leap so bonny and crystal-clear.

Down by the little crick the lads
in their barefeet stray,
And the minnows dance in the sun's bright lance, and all the country is gay.

Is gay with the spirit of spring,
its ineffable peace and joy,
It's witching while with a hyaline smile turning us back to boy.

Down by the little crick the frogs are croaking, the birds Are putting their thoughts of loveliness into a warble of words.

Down by the little crick comes summer so soon, so sweet,
And the cool tide tempts us to wade far out, happy and bare of feet.

—Baltimore Sun.

M. Laval, they say, is a thoroughly affable Frenchman, but hard-boiled under the skin.

He is not looking for trouble, indeed; quite the contrary.

It happens that the United States and France are caught in the same fix. Between them they own more than three-fourths of all the world's gold, and now the remainder of the world is threatening to abandon gold as its monetary standard.

Accordingly, President Hoover invited Premier Laval here to discuss the situation.

No one questions that Premier Laval will be willing to pledge French co-operation with the United States in any program calculated to maintain the value of the gold hoards of the two countries, for clearly it will be to his own own country's advantage to do so.

What may make the Franco-American conference less delightful than the conference between Mr. Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald, however, is the crassness of the French in always calling a spade a spade in such negotiations.

M. Laval, in several debates concerning the pending financial crisis, already has plainly expressed his government's determination to have all that France has coming to her, regardless of the consequences to others, whereas Mr. Hoover's and Prime Minister MacDonald's habit is to weigh world considerations as well as their own people's interests, in deciding international problems.

Briefly, President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald, when they talked together, spoke the same language—not meaning that they both spoke English, though they did, to be sure, but that they both spoke the language of world-wide humanitarianism.

From all indications, President Hoover and Premier Laval will prove to speak two entirely distinct languages—not meaning, either, that M. Laval knows almost no English whatever, although that, too, is true, but that his diplomatic language is strongly nationalistic, which probably will conflict with Mr. Hoover's international idiom worse than ancient Sanskrit and Choctaw.

The "Rapidan conference" was a beautiful harmony.

It will be surprising if Mr. Hoover and M. Laval do not need at least two kinds of interpreters to translate every word that they have to say to one another.

High Spots In Ohio History

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

A hundred years ago three boys whose names are familiar throughout the United States were living in Mt. Vernon, Ohio. They were the Sherman boys, John and William, and Daniel Decatur Emmett. Mt. Vernon was Emmett's birthplace. Lancaster was the boyhood home of the Shermans, but after the death of their father in his early manhood, it was necessary to find places for them in other homes. John entered the home of a cousin who was in business in Mt. Vernon, and William the home of Thomas Ewing at Lancaster. William seems to have lived later in Mt. Vernon also, for Emmett, who was seven years older than John, had many reminiscences of the Sherman boys in their school days, though it was not likely that he was in school with the Shermans for any great length of time for his school education was very limited.

In his fifteen year Emmett went to Norwalk to learn the printing trade in a newspaper office there, and when he was 17 he was back in his home town working at his trade. Emmett's recollection of William T. Sherman rather contradicts the common conception of the boyhood of that noted man. He has been presented as stern and sedate even as a boy, but Emmett recalled him as a rather wild youth, ready for any escapade at any time. It was always dignified, illustrious, and inclined to take to the books.

Emmett must have picked up a liberal education while working at his trade, as many a printer has done. But music was his one and only passion—an inherited strain from his mother. He was self-taught but that does not mean that it was superficial. He was but 15 when he wrote the words and music of "Old Dan Tucker." At 17 he was able to secure enlistment in the United States Army as a bandsman; that itself is a testimonial of his ability. During his enlistment he wrote a text on drumming. Probably nothing that the outstanding composers of the popular songs of the day have produced will out-live Dixie or Old Dan Tucker.

JURY DISMISSED

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The trial of Herbert J. Dorger, former assistant cashier of the Cosmopolitan Bank and Trust Company, ended Thursday night with dismissal of the jury which was deadlocked after seven hours of deliberation. He was charged with misapplication of bank funds.

THE ROAD BACK

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By WILLIAM GAINES

NEW YORK—Add new rackets: A fellow appears to be completely

"out," sleeping on the sidewalk or door-step. Finally one of the passersby stops to lift his head and inquire why he doesn't move along.

The chiseler mumbles something, usually with an alcoholic accent, about "wishing he could go home," but he lives in the suburbs and somebody or other has taken his last cent away from him. Usually, the Samaritan, having gone so far, goes further and shells out the required change.

The sleeper then totters around a block or so, and sinks in another spot to repeat.

I got the information on this racket from an Eighth avenue cop last night, when I called his attention to a man who appeared to be in the throes of illness in a sidewalk spot.

"Is that guy philing that again?" snarled the cop. "I'll break his neck."

SLOW MOTION PICTURES

Such a joker, this Marc Lachmann. Telephones prominent Broadwayites and tells the mho is somebody else, and has arranged for them to meet themselves at such and such a place and time, for instance. Do you follow? Well, the victims don't, either, and many of them burn at the other end of the wire. It takes practice to put over something like that, but they practice such things on Broadway.

Henry L. Mencken is an accomplished musician. In Baltimore, his home town, he plays the piano in an orchestra of highly accomplished ed amateurs that could drag down top figures in concert or vaudeville.

Al St. John, the comic, working in a movie short in Brooklyn with Ray Huling's trained seal, Charlie, spent a hunk of his pay check buying fish to keep in good with his supporting player.

Frank Bruen, formerly general manager of the Hialeah Park track, owned by Joseph E. Widener, suddenly left Widener's employ to become director of a new racetrack at Coral Gables, Fla.

There has been considerable speculation as to who the "angel" of Coral Gables might be, but the "inside" turfdom around here profess to have known all along that it is "Wild Bill" Dwyer. Bruen, once was directing manager of the Madison Square Garden.

KNOCKING ABOUT

The usual spectacle of hoodlums smashing straw hats on the streets here has not been so frequent this year. Tolerant of persons who can't afford new lids may have something to do with it, probably, though, it's just because the weather this September has been too enervating to promote that playful spirit.

An invitation comes from an art gallery to attend the "vernissage" at 4 o'clock. Whoops!

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE MAKES PUBLIC ITS PLAN OF ATTACK TO WIN OVER STUDENTS, UNION MEN AND LAWYERS

Forums to Be Formed at Hundreds of Universities.

By LESLIE EICHEL

Westerville, O., Oct. 2.—While the printing plant of the Anti-Saloon League in Westerville is held in readiness to hurl literature and subscription cards at literally millions of Americans, officials of the league, both in Washington and in Westerville, are planning a campaign to rival campaigns of prohibition days.

These campaign plans, Central Press learns from F. Scott McBride, national superintendent of the league in Washington, are, so far as capturing youth:

1. A campaign to reach 200,000 university students in 300 institutions, during 1931-32.

2. Establishment of "50-mile forums," each within a 50-mile radius of some center of higher learning.

3. Students to be encouraged to obtain an outstanding wet exponent at each center, preferably not himself a student, but a notable public man or lawyer, to whose arguments students be left to find answers.

League Supplies Data

The league will supply whatever actual material is desired, but nothing controversial. The theory is that youth psychology will be given the dry slant.

As to labor:

Drys in labor ranks will be urged to make it their duty to attend union meetings regularly to combat the wet element, which the league believes has been given undue prominence through defeat recently.

As to medical and bar associations:

Drys urged to attend meetings regularly. Backsliding believed by league to be due to drys' belief that fight had been won and thus failing to consolidate victories.

League's View

The league declares that at the now much-publicized Detroit American Legion convention, with its resolution for modification or repeal, proceedings on American soil were orderly. If there was boisterousness, it developed on wet Canadian soil, the league contends.

As the wet and dry forces line up for their greatest battle in a decade, one general, a strategist, is missing—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel and legislative superintendent of the league. He died on Sept. 5, 1927. This brilliant lawyer, who was a student working as janitor at Oberlin university when picked by the founder of the league, Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, to assist him, was worth an army.

Dr. Russell, now 76, and general

Five-Year Plan Subscription Card

This little subscription card is expected to bring in the large sums needed for the Anti-Saloon League's 1932 campaign; at right are three powerful figures of the league, the late Wayne B. Wheeler, who was general counsel and legislative superintendent, and whose death in 1927 was a blow from which the league has not yet recovered; F. Scott McBride, general superintendent, who bears the brunt of the present battle, and Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, founder of the league and still active as associate general superintendent.

superintendent of the league, himself begins the firing of the big guns for this new war.

In an interview given exclusively to Central Press, Dr. Russell, as do all the other Anti-Saloon league leaders, stresses the aim to capture the 8,000,000 new voters in the 1932 election—the balance of power.

"Former Lawlessness Forgotten"

"The eighteenth amendment was ratified by 46 states and by the largest legislative majority ever recorded," says Dr. Russell. "The friends of prohibition exulted. They naturally assumed the law passed by congress to support it would be obeyed as other laws are. They mistakenly forgot the former universal lawlessness of liquor."

"They are now awake from their sleeping sickness and are co-operating through the league and its allies to revive the work of education and organization, by which the victory in the first long campaign was achieved."

"We appeal for co-operation in the best work now being done which is the teaching again of the effects of alcohol as required by

WASHINGTON C. H. HERALD Friday Evening, Oct. 2, 1931

Deciding ballots in the 1932 election as well as in state elections preceding the national voting will be cast by those electors who heretofore have not been old enough to vote in a presidential election, according to Dr. Cherrington.

"There are approximately 20,000 of these," Dr. Cherrington says. "The great majority of these have never seen a saloon. They know nothing, except what they have heard or read, about the age-long fight for temperance and prohibition. They were between 9 and 12 years old when the eighteenth amendment went into effect. They have no background of experience to guide them, but the young men and women of today are, perhaps, the most open-minded generation in all history."

"The political victories that have been won for prohibition have been accomplished principally on a non-partisan basis. That is ideal, for reform movements should never be brought about on a partisan basis, if that can be avoided. These new voters are less party bound than any previous electorate has been, they are open to conviction, and are not swayed by party fetiches to the extent that their ancestors were swayed."

The Task

"If these new voters can be made to see that morally, scientifically, politically and economically prohibition is a sound, safe, practical policy of government, they will take the necessary political action to preserve and enforce prohibition. If they do not thus see the situation, they will put the weight of their suffrage against prohibition."

"From all indications, the 1932 election is likely to be a referendum on prohibition. It is very probable that the new voters of 1932 will find themselves faced with the opportunity and responsibility of voting for or against prohibition, through the choice of can-down.

"The temperance forces have their task cut out for them. It is that every voter shall know the real truth about beverage alcohol, prohibition and so-called substitutes for prohibition, as well as the truth about every candidate for nomination and election to any office."

One Candidate Favored

Possibly, as a beginning to making known what it considers the truth concerning each candidate, the league's American Issue quotes the Woman Voter, edited by Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson of Chevy Chase, Md.:

"There is no time to lose, the first step must be to put forward at once worthy and popular candidates on whom the overwhelming majority opposed to all the present leadership in control of the (Democratic) party can be mobilized. Such a leader as William Gibbs McAdoo, put forward now, would attract a following that would be hard to beat at the national convention. The nomination must not go to Smith or Roosevelt by default."

The impression is gained that the league is more concerned with the Democratic than the Republican party in 1932. The Democratic primaries and convention will be no place for the shell-shocked.

But the league grew to be a world power by war and conquest.

UNUSUALLY SMALL NUMBER OF LOAFERS

DEMAND FOR LABOR EXCEEDS LOCAL SUPPLY

There has been a pronounced shortage of loafers on the streets of the city this week, due to the heavy demand for labor on the farm and other places, and the recent action taken against a pair of men who had asked for township aid, were found physically able to work, and given their choice of working to support themselves and families, or going to the workhouse.

The demand for labor for two or three weeks has exceeded the local supply, and the same situation has existed in some of the adjacent counties.

Last fall the applications for work greatly exceeded the calls for labor, or just the reverse of the present situation.

The impression is gained that the league is more concerned with the Democratic than the Republican party in 1932. The Democratic primaries and convention will be no place for the shell-shocked.

But the league grew to be a world power by war and conquest.

MEMOIR

Doris June Wolf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Wolf, was born Feb. 6, 1931, and departed this life Sept. 28, 1931.

She has gone to be with her half sister and brother, Catherine and Harry, who have preceded her in death.

She leaves to mourn her loss her father and mother and four half sisters, Edna, Helen, Evelyn, and Margaret.

We were blessed with her presence only a short time, but we know the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, and at all times God's will must be done. And we know, too, that if we live to serve the Lord, in the beauty of holiness, they are not lost to us, but we shall meet them again, for the word says, Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

Little ones are welcome yonder, in the garden-fields on high; And among its flowers wander; When they go there by and by. This little flower so bright and fair God took her into his kindest care, this bud on earth, to bloom in heaven, gone, never to be forgotten.

Palbearers, Odessa Whaley, Adalee Wolfe, Anna Plummer and Helen Carry.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank Rev. Leeth for his service and sympathy, Mr. Klever and his assistants. Also friends and neighbors.

BROADWAY BRIDE

By ETHELDA BEDFORD, Author of "DEAR DIARY"

© 1931 CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, INC.

CHAPTER 51

HER HEAD ACHED and she felt as if her entire body were under some massive weight. Before she opened her eyes she was conscious of impending terror . . . she was lying on a hard, sticky surface . . . swaying, rocking, not gently . . . and wind hit in gusts . . . a salty, heavy wind.

Natalie sat up with a start. Some one was calling her name in a whisper.

"Natalie . . ."

A man's voice, and it trembled.

"Natalie," softly.

She was lying on a wooden floor of a boat. The boat was not moving, only being rocked by impatient waves.

Her hands reached for her head. Her hair was wet and damp and gritty with sand.

She remembered now. She had been dizzy and weak and then she had realized they were taking her out to the big boat outlined in the bay.

"Natalie . . ." anxiously, Carlton.

She whispered, "Yes?"

Through the fog she made out a man's figure, sprawled on the deck about ten feet from her. Straining to see she recognized the bare shoulders with their scant covering of bathing suit straps as those of Carlton.

He slowly pulled himself along the deck toward her.

She lay down again and waited. Her heart pounded deafeningly. Her body became tense. It was all she could do to remain still. He was much nearer now.

A chilling wind flapped the sails which swung high in the sky. They billowed and pulled against their fastenings, making a rustling sound. Carlton dragged himself across the rough surface. She could hear him. But when the wind rustled the sails she couldn't. He was using these intervals in the foreboding quietness to shorten the distance between them.

Another wind and he would be within a few feet of her. She tried to pray. She was almost paralyzed from cold and exposure. A rough hemp sack, such as she'd seen used for vegetables, was thrown carelessly over her. It half covered her legs.

What had become of Alyn? The thought sent a warm glow over her.

And hot tears to her eyes, which trickled into her hair and made her warmer, somehow.

Nita? Would she ever be able to tell Nita about this horrible experience? Whose was Nita? Nita, with her brittle laugh and bright wise eyes? Nita was the cause of all of this . . . every bit of it! What would Nita have done? Natalie did not try to stop the warm flow of her tears.

She was sorry for herself, for Alyn, and suddenly, instead of hating Nita she was sorry for her, too.

Everything had been wrong, between Nita and Natalie, from the beginning. Everything. Truesdale, with its petty gossip and its stiff dignity floated past in Natalie's mind, as if it were some drab, uninteresting part of a news reel in some cold, damp picture house.

It was as if she viewed everything that ever had happened to her as something apart, of no more consequence to her now than the thick, salty air blowing over her.

"Natalie?" Carlton was very close now. About three feet away. He lay on his stomach, his arms straight out over his head. It occurred to her that he had been thrown on the deck in that prostrate position.

She couldn't remember what they did with her, after Joe had lifted her into the motor boat. Her head throbbed.

"Can you swim?" Carlton whispered.

"A little."

"They're left out here. Not guarded."

"Where are we?"

"About a mile from the shore."

"Have we been here all the time?" she asked.

"Yes—practically. This schooner keeps within a small area."

"Several hours?"

"What happened?"

"Nothing—they were frightened when you fainted. Afraid you might not come around . . . then they put you out here in the air."

"Oh."

"If they come out make believe you're still dizzy—or asleep."

"Yes."

"Could you swim a mile to shore?"

Her chilled body was all aches. Her head throbbed.

"I could try."

FEWER DETOURS IN THIS AREA

However, One in Madison on 38 Still in Force

Motorists are now finding a decrease in the number of detours in this part of the state, and those lifted include some of the worst ones.

It is now possible to drive to Columbus on the CCC without a detour between Grove City and Columbus, traffic being maintained over that section which has been widened and rebuilt between the two points.

The detour on 38, one of the longest in this area, was lifted earlier in the week, and will no longer annoy motorists.

The detour between Melvin Cross roads and Wilmington is still in effect, but will be lifted within the next ten days or two weeks, the pouring of concrete having been finished this week. There is still a considerable detour on the CCC east of Morrow, however.

On Route 19 east of New Holland, is a detour that has been in effect for some five weeks.

Between Worthington and Delaware is another long detour on the main route from Columbus to Delaware.

Another detour, which has been in force all summer, and where very slow progress in road building seems to have been made, is on Route 38 in Madison county.

Just what has caused the long delay on the rebuilding work does not seem to be known, and in the meantime motorists are continuing to make the detour of many miles out of the road, and over dusty highways.

To the southward no detours of consequence are to be found within 65 miles of this city.

Indiana Most Courageous in Tackling Irish

Chicago, Oct. 2.—(P)—Big Ten football, rated on the college exchange as one of the best brands of the pigskin chasing industry, may realize what a real bear market is like Saturday when three of its representatives finish their important battles against powerful non-conference foes.

No one except the most audacious Hoosier freshmen gave Indiana more than a fighting chance against "Hunk" Anderson's Notre Dame army at Bloomington; Iowa's hopes of stemming the Pittsburgh invasion were dimmed by injuries, while a stirring battle was anticipated from start to finish, between Nebraska and Northwestern at Evanston.

Of the trio of Big Ten teams, Northwestern was granted the best chance to serve a victory Saturday. Fortified by experienced veterans and a great line, the Wildcats were in excellent physical condition to hulk the Huskers from Nebraska. Al Moore, a promising halfback candidate, was the only Wildcat on the injury list, but two or three sophomores of exceptional promise were ready to make Coach Dick Hanley forget all about him. Nebraska, too, was in fine shape, physically and mentally, for the Big Ten battle at Dyche stadium.

Four full Notre Dame teams headed for Bloomington today with a stop-over at Martinsville, Ind., for a final but brief drill. Coach Anderson, fully satisfied with prospects, said he planned to give every man a try in the Hoosier game as an inventory for the more important Northwestern game a week away.

A sell out crowd of 22,000 was expected to watch the contest.

Three full Pittsburgh teams headed for Iowa and every player was in good shape as compared to several injuries in the Hawkeye squad.

Meanwhile six other conference teams confidently awaited the whistle for easier non-conference games. Michigan had a double-header with Central State Teachers and Michigan Normal College. Illinois worried some over kicking before its opening game with St. Louis University; Ohio State planned to send two seniors, five juniors and four sophomores against the University of Cincinnati; Purdue was all set with a veteran lineup for its first doubleheader in history against Western Reserve and Coe, champions of the Midwest Conference; Wisconsin was framing a fine passing attack to greet Bradley, and Minnesota polished up its defense for Oklahoma's Aggies. Chicago took it easy with no game until October 10 when it meets Michigan.

LITTLE SERIES ALL EVEN NOW

St. Paul, Oct. 2.—(P)—With their little world series all even at one game apiece, Rochester and St. Paul had an open date today.

The Rochester Red Wings, champions of the International league, squared the count yesterday with a 5 to 2 victory over St. Paul, pennant winners of the American Association. The Saints won the first game, 4 to 0.

A total of only 3,993 persons paid $5,346.25 to see the game, bringing the attendance for the two contests to 8,837 and the receipts to $11,163.75.

Fight Results

By The Associated Press

Oshkosh, Wis.—Angelo Puglis, Duluth, Minn., knocked out Eddie Oster, Milwaukee, (2); Bobby Allen, Chicago, and Johnny Lombardo, Milwaukee, drew, (8).

New York—Kid Chocolate, Cuba, stopped Joe Scalfaro, New York, (1).

Muncie, Ind.—Willard Brown, Lafayette, Ind., outpointed Jimmy Conley, Toledo, O., (10); Herbie Anderson, Muncie, outpointed Cliff Larue, Toledo, (8).

As The Camera Caught The Series Opener

HAS ZUPPKE FOUND ANOTHER GHOST?

Gil Berry, Illini Fans Hope, May Be Just the Boy to Fill That Famous Jersey with the 77 on the Back

Champaign, Ill.—(P)—It has been five years since Coach Bob Zuppke constructed his heavy forward walls and intricate interference to pave the way for Red Grange to march down the gridirons, but the Dutch Master still has the urge to create another such system.

He may have a chance this year.

That unknown quantity in the University of Illinois 1931 "mystery" team is Zuppke's forward wall, which, made up most entirely of sophomores, will average around 200 pounds to the man.

Zuppke has a man who may be a good enough sprinter and wriggles to take advantage of the holes that a heavy but fast line may make.

He is Gil Berry, an all-conference back as a sophomore, and now the main speed cog in Zuppke's 1931 backfield as a junior.

Berry, in fact, was the only man certain of a regular berth on the squad when practice started in the Illini camp, and he is working to justify Zuppke's confidence in him.

The Illinois practice has evolved itself into two major problems. Each day Zuppke works with his line, teaches it blocking and tackling. Then he tries to build up a heavy backfield, with 200-pound Dave Cook, also a sophomore, as the main ram-rod.

Onlookers wonder why so much weight. There is a possibility that he is preparing a huge wedge for Berry, who although he is no Grange, is fast and tricky.

Zuppke proudly asserts he meets the three strongest teams in the country within three weeks in October. And he may have some surprises up his sleeve.

2000 Fans Expected For O. S. U. Opener

Columbus, O., Oct. 2.—(P)—Close to 20,000 fans are expected to gather at Ohio State University's massive stadium Saturday to see the 1931 Buckeye gridiron machine in action when the University of Cincinnati Bearcats come here to open the season.

That Coach S. S. Willaman hopes to take Cincinnati in stride was indicated yesterday when the Bucks started to work on a defense constructed to stop Vanderbilt plays. The commanders are here for the second game of the season, on Oct. 19.

Shade and Jeby Meet in Gotham

New York, Oct. 2.—(P)—Dave Shade, who has fought more than 400 battles in the last 14 years now meets Ben Jeby, in a 12-round, middleweight struggle in Madison Square Garden.

Shade rules an 8 to 5 choice despite the fact that Jeby held him to a draw after a rousing contest here recently.

CUBS AND SOX SERIES EVEN

Chicago, Oct. 2.—(P)—The Chicago White Sox and Cubs were all square today as they moved their fight for the city baseball championship over to Comiskey park for the third game.

Breaking the charm held over them for 17 consecutive innings by the White Sox pitchers, the Cubs squeezed through with a thrilling, 1 to 0 victory at Wrigley Field yesterday to deadlock the series and insure its life past the four-game mark.

Guilford College, N. C.—(P)—Coach John Anderson looks over his prospects for a winning football team here this year and just about weeps. Eight lettermen will be back, but the coach says it will take a miracle to make possible a team that can win.

ATHLETICS' KID SHORTSTOP HERO OF WORLD SERIES AS HE CALMLY FILLS POSITION

By WILLIAM WEEKES

St. Louis, Oct. 2.—(P)—He does not aspire to heroics but Dibrill Williams, 21-year-old recruit shortstop of the world champion Athletics, is well on his way today to becoming one of the heroes of the 1931 world series.

Except for the fates of baseball which have just about eliminated Joe Boley from the championship series with the Cardinals, Williams would not be in a spot to make or break the Athletics' defense. But, being dropped into the spot has made no difference to the youngster, who regards even a contest in the world champion series as just another ball game.

Boley, thoroughly realizing Williams is taking over his job, perhaps permanently, has worked tirelessly to teach the youngster all he knows.

Young Dibs, whose most noticeable characteristics are a huge chew of tobacco, and an almost phlegmatic calmness, is the youngest player in the big series, but he is taking it as matter-of-factly as though he was as seasoned as his instructor.

Williams, who has been tutored by Boley since long before current injuries made it impossible for the veteran to start the series, handled five chances yesterday and at least two of his fielding efforts were huge factors in heading off possible Cardinal rallies. In the first inning, after the Cards had scored their two runs, Williams went over back of second base to snare Wilson's grounder and throw perfectly to nail the St. Louis catcher at first. The play made the third out, with Bottomley on first and Frankie Frisch on second at the time.

In the sixth, with two out, Chick Hafey stole third and during an argument over the decision, Pepper Martin sneaked to second. Gelbert rammed a vicious grounder at Williams, but the kid infielder took care of it, and a possible pair of runs never materialized.

The youngster also did some important hitting and scored the A's first run in the big third inning. He singled past first base, and scored on Haas' double. He was credited with another single in the sixth when Derringer fell while trying to field his bunt, but was cut down on Bottomley's unassisted double play, on Bishop's ineffectual throw.

Kid Chocolate Still Champion

New York, Oct. 2.—(P)—The junior lightweight championship doesn't mean much to the flaccid world in general but Kid Chocolate evidently prizes it.

The Cuban won the synthetic 130-pound crown by stopping Benny Bass in Philadelphia several months ago. Last night, with the title at stake, he disposed of Joe Scalfaro, hard-hitting Harlem boy, in 39 seconds of the first round at Queensboro stadium.

Many experts thought Scalfaro was in shape to continue, but the referee, Kid Otto, waved him to his corner, although Scalfaro was up at the count of eight and full of fight.

Jesse Frontierhouse of Oklahoma City set a course record of 61 at Shepherd Lake in the city invitation golf tourney.

From the FOOTBALL Fronts

Annapolis, Maryland.—Notre Dame won't feel the absence of Knute Rockne in its football wars for at least two years. In the opinion of Edgar "Rip" Miller, one of the famous coach's most outstanding products and now head coach of the Navy.

"Football is made up, to a large extent, by psychology," Miller said. "The psychology of winning this game for Rock" will add the needed spark for the Irish.

"I know I went one and clawed the dirt and played like—for 'good old Gipp' and I never even knew how to spell his name then. It was just that he had been a great Notre Dame back and had given his all to the team before he died."

"That same spirit will go a long way toward giving Hunk Anderson the spark he needs in addition to his coaching ability in seeking to take Rock's place."

Miller was an All-American guard in 1924, the year Notre Dame ripped the national gridiron with the famous "Four Horsemen" backfield of Stuldreher, Crowley, Layden and Miller.

Seattle—Romeo Lauzon, former University of Washington center, has been named football coach at St. Martin's college, south of Tacoma, Washington. He succeeds Father Edwards who resigned after 23 years' service.

Austin, Tex.—(P)—Dexter Shelley, Lester Peterson and "Ox" Emerson, former University of Texas football stars, will join Portsmouth, O., this season as professional players.

These three, with Shelley the outstanding performer, rank among the most brilliant players to show in the Southwest conference. Shelley served as captain of the University of Texas championship team last year.

Mercer University football team will travel 6,000 miles this fall to their gridiron contests.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

The feminine dynasty shows indication of yielding its rule to a number of fields where it has been necessary to cast about for masculine leaders.

Helen Wills Moody swept courts for her seventh National tennis championship this year, convincingly superior than ever she finished her fourth straight season without the loss of a single set.

Glenna Collett Vare, in the national women's golf championship at Buffalo, will seek her fourth successive crown and her sixth title, the first triumphed in 1922 at White Sulphur Springs. It will be a new record in women's golf she wins again.

Helene Madison, the Sea swimming marvel, has continued her unbroken string of conquest. With the 1932 Olympics in the ring she seems due to capture aquatic honors that any mermaid has ever held before.

THAT YANKTOWN REPORT

It is a trifle early for the basketball argument to begin but they became lost in the shuffle, may as well have the inside of from Ace Aase of the Yankton D.) Press and Dakotan. It says Ace, that:

"Yankton high school has seven basketball champions and has been runner-up once in past ten years in the state tournament. Yankton was state representative at the annual Stagg tournament in Chicago more than any other and was runner-up in 1924."

"Classed as a strong defense team this year, the Yankton Bucks went through conference, district and state tournaments without loss and amassed a total of points to their opponents' 378 games. One player alone scored 397 points or 19 more than total of the school's opponents."

Ray Hammann, six feet inches 19-year-old boy who goes to the University of Wisconsin, year was all-state guard for years. Smith, this year's cap was all-state forward for years.

"They play football here. The Yankton Bucks scored points to their opponents' 2 year. It's a great defensive 1."

This seems to bring Yankton to date, a trifle belated. Still more than 45 minutes from Yankton and it takes time for check-ups.

MORE WARNER ENTORING

Anytime Glenn Scooby (Pop) ner accepts an engagement, football activity in the east, in fair assumption that the old has a few things to show the boys.

Hence, there will be a gathering of the coaching clans when Warner's Stanford team plays Dartmouth in the Harvard Stadium late season. They like to see Pop will do next.

Pop's last venture to the lanky seacoast was in 1928, a expense of West Point, as it turned out. The Stanford Indians played a football show at the Yale Stadium that won more credit to the Warner system of play than any single football event on record.

There was literally a war between the Warnerism after that slay. Even the army has "gone" Warner since then.

Warner has been out on coast so long that many in the forget he was famous for his ingenuity in these parts by shifting his activities to Stanford. Pop sent Andy Kerr out to the way for his advent. Afterward Andy came right back east to up a duplicate of his mentor's team at Colgate.

U. S. and Canada Even Up in Golf

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 2.—(P)—four semi-final round berths in Canadian women's golf championship were evenly divided between the United States and Canada today.

Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, J., holder of the crown was defeated by Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, and Mrs. Alexa Stirling of Ottawa against Ma Kirkham of Montreal. Can closed champion, thus assuring international contest in Saturday.

During 19 years of coast football teams of Howard won 126 games, lost 36 and nine for an average of .778.

Ben Clemons, Tallahassee handed pitcher, was picked as most valuable man in the Georgia Florida league.

The Day's News in Pictures

Yes, sir, there's a real still set up in the state house, at Charleston, W. Va. Don't be unduly alarmed, little streams of alcohol aren't trickling from its coils. The device merely has been placed in the capitol as an exhibit to "show the public what a real corn still looks like." It was captured in a raid at Huntington, W. Va., and is of 250-gallon capacity. Photo shows the still being received at the state house in Charleston.

Here is an unusual picture of a wildcat still, snapped by an alert photographer, in its native haunt in the northwest Arkansas Ozarks. It is of the variety that can be hastily dismantled and moved to a place of concealment. The still itself is made of copper and from its top a pipe runs to the tub in which it is coiled. As the mash boils in the still, the steam or vapor passes through the coil, is condensed by cold water piped from a spring located behind the still, and, as mountain dew, empties in a small stream into the glass fruit jar shown beneath the end of the coil.

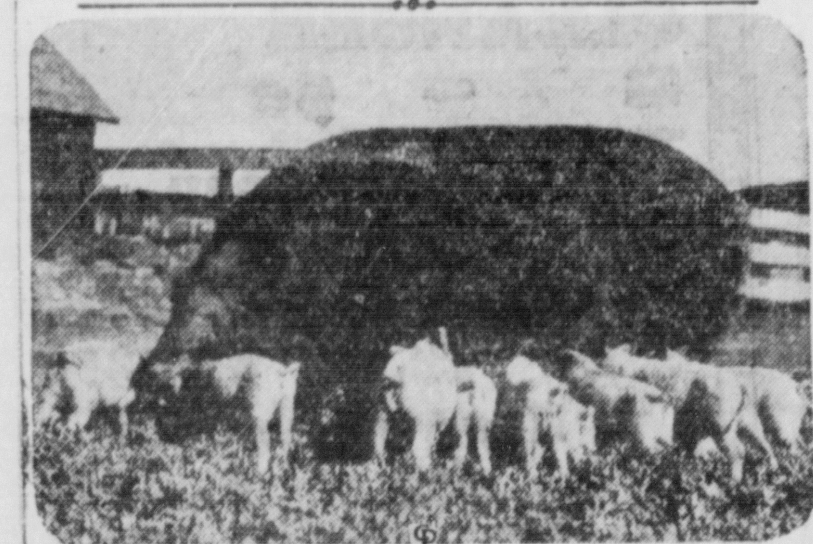

These photos from Milan, O., of the birthplace of Thomas A. Edison (1), show (2) the kitchen in which few changes have been made in 75 years; (3) Edison's cousin, Miss Marietta Wadsworth, who occupies the house; (4) exterior of the house, which was erected 90 years ago; (5) the room in which the aged inventor was born, Feb. 11, 1847. Several old residents still remember him.

The fall fashion parade is characterized by charm, diversity and originality, according to Lucien Lelong. The general impression is one of youthful dignity. The sketch shows a Lelong gown of pink and blue lace, bodice and skirt being different shades, a new note in evening fashions.

Pork, and lots of it, is represented by this huge 900-pound Poland China sow. On March 17, 1929, she farrowed 16 pigs, 15 of which reached maturity and weighed 4,187.5 pounds on the 180th day, the largest ton litter ever produced in the west. She farrowed again on Sept. 28, 1929, with 10 pigs, weighing 2,014 pounds on the 180th day. In March, 1930, farrowed 14 pigs, 13 of which weighed 3,358 pounds on the 169th day. On May 8, 1931, she farrowed 19 pigs, 13 are living and are on their way to another big litter. The sow is owned jointly by Cleon, in picture, and Reed Anderson, Future Farmers of the Bear River high school, Tremonton, Utah. Pigs sold weighed a total of 9,545 pounds, bringing a total of $1,097.18 with a net profit of $453.00.

Girlhood dreams are coming true for Ethel Wynne, daughter of Dr. Shirley Wynne, health commissioner of New York. She is to have a role as understudy in the entirely feminine cast of a show soon to be produced. Miss Wynne has had experience on the French amateur stage.

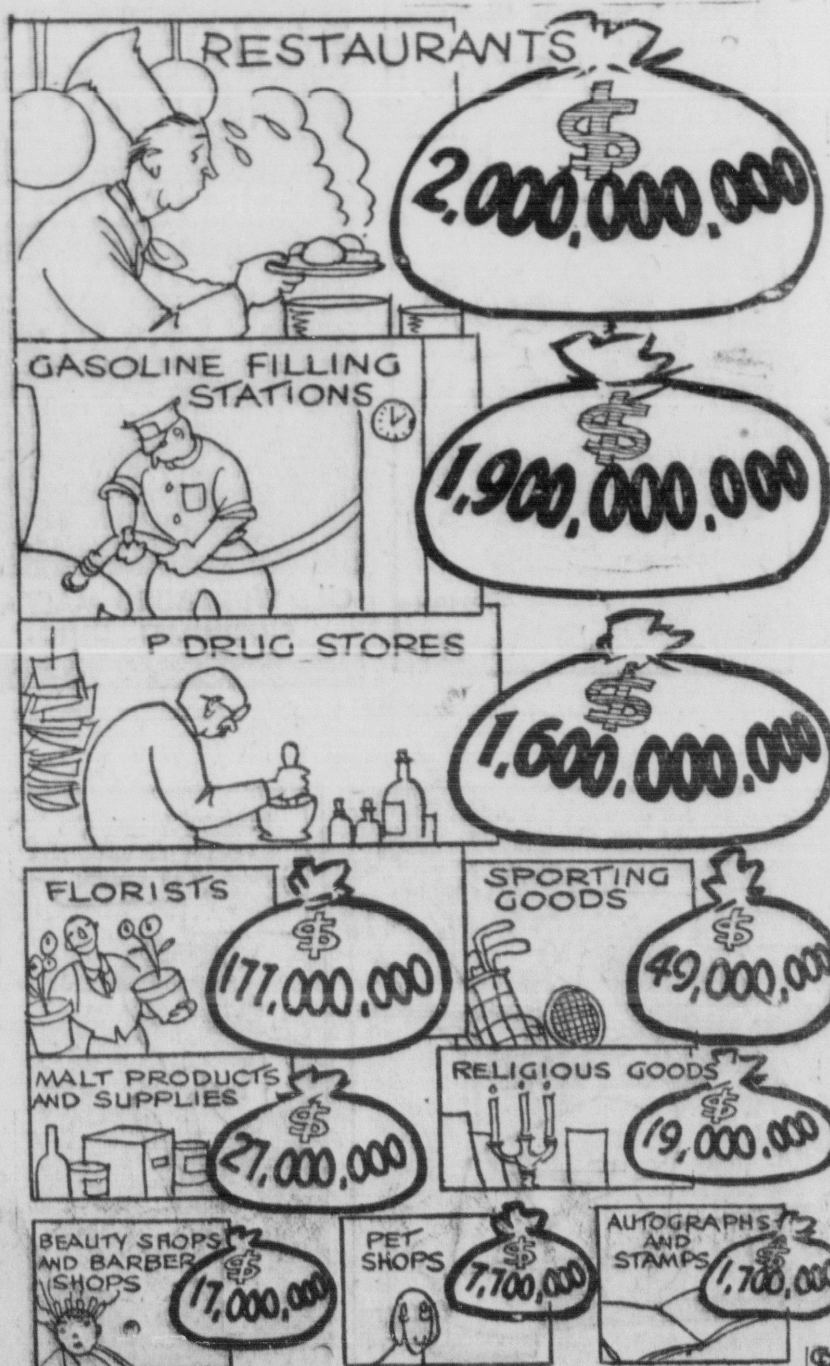

Undaunted by repeated failures, Mrs. Rena Mooney, above, fights for the freedom of her husband, Tom Mooney, who is serving a life sentence in San Quentin, in connection with the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing in San Francisco.

This diagram gives a graphic conception of the volume of retail business in the United States today. Figures were made public by the census bureau. One interesting fact disclosed is that drug stores with soda fountains do twice the volume of business as stores which have no soda fountains.

As 100,000 members of the American Legion and their families began streaming into Detroit for the annual convention of the World War veterans, convention headquarters opened. Below, left to right, are Col. Alton Roberts, vice president of the convention committee; James Barton, national adjutant, and Col. F. M. Alger, president of the convention corporation. Above is an automobile of the 1904 vintage which will lead the colorful Legion parade.

When you are discussing the aristocracy of Pigdom, don't forget to include Poland China, above. This sow is the champion litter raiser of the west. In 22 months she produced three litters of pigs, weighing a total of 9,545 pounds, worth $1,097.18.

The largest ton litter of pigs ever produced in the west was raised by Poland China, 15 pigs, weighing 4,173.5 pounds on the 180th day, Sept. 21, 1929. The new litter, above, is expected to set another mark. With the sow is Cleon Anderson.

Here's the cover of the first issue of "Repeal," a magazine devoted to prohibition reforms and published by Major Maurice Campbell, former prohibition director of New York. The magazine is expected to add impetus to a nationwide repeal movement.

This charming New Yorker, Miss Ethel Byron, has taken the advice of Horace Greeley, the great journalist, "Go west." She entered a beauty contest at Ocean

Park, Cal., as "Miss New York" and is competing with girls from all parts of the United States for the crown of "Miss North America."

HELD AS SUSPECT IN XENIA HOLDUP

Princeton, Ind., (AP)—Hassell Grubb, 25, was held here Friday for Xenia authorities, who want him for a holdup Tuesday night when officers shot and killed his companion, Newell Black, 28, Grubb, arrested at the home of his mother, Mrs. Frank Summers, told police he and Black were holding up two automobiles when Black was slain.

SPEAKEASY KILLING SUSPECTS ARE HELD

ARRESTED WHEN THEY GO TO SEE GUNMEN INJURED IN AUTO SMASHUP.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Two men were being held by Cleveland police in an effort to connect John Davis, 39, reputed slayer of Earl Gamble, 40, in a Warren speak-easy holdup early yesterday, with recent Cleveland crimes.

D. L. Cowles, police ballistic expert, also was to go to Warren today to make test shots with the gun used in the killing both to strengthen the case against Davis and to determine whether the gun was used in any Cleveland shootings.

The two men held were arrested after they went to Warren yesterday to visit Davis, critically injured when his automobile crashed into a tree while speeding from the shooting. James Barrett, 26, a companion of Davis, was still unconscious today and was expected to die. A third man alleged to have taken part in the killing, Geo. Spraggins, 28, Cleveland, died yesterday.

Detective Inspector Cornelius W. Cody, reported Davis admitted taking parts in the holdups of the Rainbow Gardens, August 23, in which $1,629 was taken, the Lyndhurst Country club, September 11, in which $500 was taken, and the Embassy Inn, Sept. 20, in which the loot amounted to $202.

Cleveland police believe the same gang may have been involved in other crimes here.

A woman arrested with the two friends of Davis were released after questioning.
